Ruling Called 'Green Light' For Rape

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rape victims have accused a judge who reversed a rape conviction of giving men "a green light" to assault and molest female hitchhikers. "We find it outrageous that a judge can make such a decision," Joan Robbins, co-director of the Los Angeles Commission on Assaults Against Women, said Thursday.

"He obviously doesn't understand what it means to be a woman in this society and what it means to be a rape victim," she added. "We feel this decision gives a green light to men who pick up female hitchhikers to assault, rape or molest them." On Wednesday, Justice Lynn Compton of the 2nd District Court of Appeals, overturned the rape conviction of Clifford Alan Hunt, Compton wrote in support of his decision.

"The lone female hitchhiker in the absence of an emergency situation, as a practical matter, advises all who pass by that she is willing to enter the vehicle with anyone who stops and in so doing advertises she has less concern for the consequences than the average female.

"Under such circumstances it would not be unreasonable for a man in the position of defendant here to believe that the female would consent to sexual relations."

His remarks were seen by many women as in the same vein as those reportedly made by a Madison, Wis., county judge who sentenced a 15-year-old boy to a year at home after he was found guilty of raping a 16-year-old girl. Dade County Judge Archie Simonson was quoted in news reports as implying at the trial that the boy was "reacting normally" to provocative clothing worn by women and a sexually permissive atmosphere in Madison.

Compton's reversal of Hunt's conviction was based on the argument that the trial judge erred in his instructions to the jury about admitting evidence of a prior sex offense by Hunt. Soon after Compton's remarks were reported by the media, a young woman, who asked not to be identified, was interviewed as she tried to thumb a ride.

"They don't say guys are out for anything when they hitch. Nobody has the right to ravage anybody else's body under any circumstances," she said. Gloria Alfred, Los Angeles Chapter coordinator for the National Organization for Women (NOW), said the judge's decision indicates that justice is "succumbing to the fantasies of the male who wants to think women want rape."

"Rape is a crime of violence," said Barbara Jacobson, a member of Women Against Rape and Men Against Rape. "When a woman makes a decision to hitchhike, she is only deciding on a ride, and not on a sexual encounter. She is certainly not making a conscious decision to be raped."

The woman who Hunt picked up testified during his trial that she yielded to his sexual suggestions because she feared he would rape and murder her. A friend of hers had been raped and killed in the same area, she had said. In reversing the verdict, Compton said that Hunt used neither physical force nor expressly uttered threats against the woman.

Johnstown Flood Toll Now 46

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Refugees and a volunteer army battling mud and fatigue have found 46 dead in this flood-ravaged city. Dozens are missing, and damage is put at more than $200 million.

On Thursday, bodies were pulled from bashed houses and twisted rubble littering the scarred seven-county flood area in southwestern Pennsylvania.

"We're expecting more bodies," said deputy Cambria County coroner Arthur Kelper from his makeshift morgue in the East Hills Elementary School near here. Officials said they had no way yet to accurately guess how many might be dead.

Scattered looting was reported throughout the area, and some residents armed themselves to protect what little they had left. Police arrested three men ransacking a Johnstown bar Thursday night.

Half an inch of fresh rain belted this devastated city of 41,000 Thursday afternoon, briefly raising fears of another deluge, before tapering off to a steady drizzle.

"Oh, my God, were people concerned," said county Civil Defense director Elmer Shenk. "It looked like a major storm, and that's all we would have needed."

The city was evacuated shortly before the storm, which set off mudslides in several areas. Winds up to 65 miles an hour whipped up caked mud, cutting visibility to 100 yards.

The National Weather Service forecast good weather for the weekend, however, giving cleanup crews hope that they would be able to resume work in earnest.

"There is hardly anything that creates the mess a flood creates," said Jack Minnette, chief of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' engineering division assigned here.

"There's no telling how long the cleanup will take. It's a monumental task."

The Corps said damage in Johnstown alone would exceed $117 million.

"Had we not built the flood control project in Johnstown after the 1936 flood, those damages today would be $485 million," said Herman Lardieri, a flood plain management expert.

President Carter declared the region a federal disaster area on Thursday and dispatched special assistant Greg Schneider to serve, as Schneider described it, as the President's "eyes and ears."

Richard Sanderson, staff director from the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, was assigned to coordinate federal relief efforts.

He told reporters he plans to set up one-stop relief centers where victims can take care of all their flood-related problems at one time.

An estimated 50,000 persons were displaced when torrential rains pushed mountain rivers and streams over their banks along a 70-mile stretch of the Cuyahoga River valley.

College dormitories and school buildings were converted to makeshift shelters, but many survivors simply packed what few belongings they could find and pulled out.

"The family won't be able to come back, not with the stink," said George Finley, 55, a well-fare father of five, whose trailer home in nearby Huff was washed away.

"What are you supposed to do when you lose everything and you didn't have nothing to start with?" asked his wife Alberta as she peeked the children in an old blue station wagon for the ride to a friend's home.

While some people packed, state troopers used billy clubs to poke for bodies in waist-high mud and the consistency of pudding in nearby Seward, where water washed away as many as 50 mobile homes.

Tax Tribunal's '16th Mill' Rule Hurts Schools

By JERRY KRIEGER

Farm & Features Editor

The Michigan Tax Tribunal has ruled that an extra mill of tax levied in many school districts that cross county lines in Michigan is unconstitutional.

And this decision may cost these districts some millions in tax revenues. Or, from the taxpayers' standpoint it can save taxpayers in these district a similar sum in taxes that they've paid for many years in an apparently illegal extra mill of tax.

The ruling was first made last fall in a Bay City school district case, but its statewide implications were not generally recognized immediately.

But this week, the Tax Tribunal ruled again in an appeal made by the townships in Van Buren county that the split millage, as it is sometimes called, is illegal. The Tribunal verbally ordered the Van Buren Tax Allocation board to rescind the "16th" mill it allows to be levied in townships within the South Haven and Gobles school districts. It said the township property owners were being assessed 16 mills of nonvoted taxes, in violation of the 15-mill property tax limitation in the state constitution.

The split, or differential, millage concept originated following adoption of the state 1963 constitution. A unique provision in the constitution says school districts that cross county lines may impose property taxes at "the highest rate" that is "available" in the county which constitutes the greatest part of the school district's area.

Because cities do not have a one-mill township tax and thus only levy 14 mills for their winter tax bills, it came to be considered by county tax allocation boards that another mill was available within the 15-mill limit. The allocation boards gave that extra mill to the schools, and at the same time allowed the districts to tack the added mill onto township tax bills too. The townships, on the other hand, already were assessing 15 mills, and the extra mill became a 16th mill on township tax bills.

After about a dozen years, the State Tax Tribunal has ruled this 16th mill of nonvoted tax on township property is unconsti-

The extra mill for schools is still apparently legal within the city portions of these school districts, according to Atty. Richard Reed of Kalamazoo. He is counsel for the Van Buren townships that appealed to the tribunal.

On the other hand, Assistant State Attorney General Lawrence Morgan said the attorney general issued an opinion about five years ago that millage levied has to be the same for all units. Seemingly,

Millions For Icebreakers

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — A bill providing nearly $18 million for two new icebreaking tugs on the Great Lakes is on its way to President Carter for his approval. An aide to Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., said Thursday that Congressional action has been completed on the Department of Transportation appropriations package. The new tugs would replace some of the dozen World War II-vintage tugs still working the lakes. Another section of the package calls for spending $3.5 million to replace the Coast Guard Air Station hangar at Traverse City.

Settlement Gives Plaintiff What Jury Wouldn't

Defense attorneys yesterday agreed to a $40,000 out-of-court settlement for a Coloma man during a civil trial in Berrien Circuit court.

They later learned a majority of the jury would have voted not to award anything to the plaintiff.

The award was made to Michael Hipskind for injuries he sustained when the car in which he was a passenger was struck by a train on Jan. 22, 1973, on a spur track to Twin Cities Container Corp., Coloma.

The $40,000 went against the defendant in the case, Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.

The trial in Judge William S. White's court was in its third day when attorneys for both sides agreed to the settlement. White said his court reporter, John McCarthy, was asked by jurors after adjournment what the settlement was. McCarthy, White said, asked what their verdict would have been, and four of the six jurors said they would have voted that Hipskind had no cause for action.

A civil trial requires that only four of the six-member jury agree for their decision to be the final verdict. Attorneys for both sides later learned what the verdict would have been.

Hipskind suffered a broken ankle in the crash, which required fusion surgery to mend. His original suit sought $200,000 damages.

St. Joseph Atty. Harry Creager represented Hipskind in the trial, while defense attorneys were David York of Kalamazoo and P. William McKee of Grand Rapids.

Carter Leaves Yazoo City For Oil Rig

By FRANK CORMIER

Associated Press Writer

YAZOO CITY, Miss. (AP) — President Carter, in a demonstration of his administration's interest in oil production, is heading for an oil rig perched on the edge of the Continental Shelf.

After fielding questions from sweltering Mississippians at a nationally broadcast public meeting Thursday night, Carter today was to visit a huge drilling platform that stands in 500 feet of water in the Gulf of Mexico off the Louisiana coast.

"It's a good way to illustrate the fact that, contrary to the full-page ads the oil companies are running in newspapers, there is a considerable interest or emphasis on production in this administration's national energy policy, to the tune of billions of dollars," said White House press secretary Jody Powell.

Powell said, for example, that under the administration energy plan oil companies would have $15 billion worth of additional incentives over a five-year period to explore for fresh supplies of natural gas because of the administration's proposal to raise prices.

Powell's reference to oil company advertising apparently was aimed at Mobil Oil, which had full-page ads in some newspapers today. Those ads were sharply critical of the administration's energy plan.

At Yazoo City, Carter told his audience at a steamy high school that he believes present federal programs can be continued, if not expanded, and taxes cut with the federal budget in balance by 1981.

He said this could be done "under normal economic circumstances" if the bureaucracy is reorganized and properly managed.

Reviewing his first six months in office, the President said continued high unemployment was a disappointment. But he said one part of a welfare revision program he will unveil next month would "encompass an additional one million new jobs."

The audience, which sometimes seemed to be a sea of waving fans advertising burial insurance and a mortuary, applauded as Carter added, "I want to put people who are able to work to work, and get them off welfare."

Carter shook his suit coat by the time he faced his second questioner, who was preceded to the platform by a man who instructed the crowd on the questioning procedure, cautioning: "Please don't fan or sweat while you ask your question."

Before going to Mississippi, Carter stopped at Charleston, S.C., to address the annual Southern Legislative Conference.

There, he discussed relations with the Soviet Union, saying

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Hey, Jimmy, What About New York's Paternalism?

The Associated Press reported Thursday that President Carter said he feels high unemployment contributed to the widespread looting in New York City during the blackout last week, indicating a need for more government help in urban areas.

Jimmy couldn't be more wrong! His conclusion is exactly the opposite of what America's experiments with social welfare teach. From Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal of 1932 to Secretary Joseph Califano's 1977 version of HEW, handouts have spawned only more handouts. No objective observer can conclude otherwise.

Carter's blatantly political perspective has produced an unintentional irony. Of all places, New York City is the last that should be targeted for more social welfare. The Big Apple is world famous as the city where "welfarism" ran amok.

Even now that tempers have cooled a bit, it is still not possible to be kind about what happened in New York City when the lights went out. Any number of excuses have been offered for the conduct of upwards of 10,000 of the city's residents when the blackout descended.

They are not good excuses, not in New York. Is that not the city which has nearly bankrupted itself with the most paternalistic government of any American metropolis, the highest welfare budget among the cities, wages at the top of the scale for the most menial labor?

It is, and it also demonstrated its incapacity for self-government when a temporary emergency strikes. Almost 4,000 arrests, up to $2 billion in damages, perhaps 2,000 small businessmen put out of business — some temporarily, but many will not reopen. More than six-hundred buildings were torched by arsonists. That was one day in New York City.

Obviously, it has not occurred to President Carter that over-paternalism and a breakdown in basic morality go hand in hand. Jimmy sees votes among the looters and their apologists. The devil with the truth!

Begin-Carter Talks Not Waste Of Time

Unless a big nation is speaking to a small neighboring state, negotiations in foreign affairs tend to be an endurance contest in talking and listening.

Prime Minister Begin's disclosure of his two-day visit with President Carter concerning the ground rules for discussing something more permanent than the 10-year armistice between Israel and the Arab community is the latest illustration of that generalization.

The meeting at the White House had a dual purpose.

One was the desire of the two heads of state to size up one another.

The second was to discern if Begin wants a negotiated settlement or if he prefers that his country continue on in its garrison condition of existence.

Reporters covering the externals of the proceedings fool Carter and Begin entertain a healthy respect for one another as hard realists, that they would prefer to be together rather than on opposite sides.

Begin's press conferences following the White House talks indicate a willingness to go 50-50 with the Arabs but not in any ratio adverse to what he deems vital to Israeli security.

Carter's summary was one of guarded optimism.

He and Begin, he said, tossed everything out on the table, agreed on some points and shied away from others. Limited as it is, the consensus, Carter believes, is strong enough to justify a feeling that the long stalled Geneva peace conference can be reopened in October.

The clearest assessment comes from Carter's aides who sat in on the conference.

Begin, they said, is a refreshing difference from his predecessor in office. He leaves no doubt as to where he stands, whereas the man he defeated in the recent election waffled on the peace question so frequently that his Arab neighbors were uncertain of where he stood at any given moment.

Begin's forthrightness, if nothing else, outlines what might be possible and what is not negotiable.

He rejects Carter's view on creating a Palestinian refugee state as complicating an already cumbersome territorial division in a small land area.

He refuses to go to Geneva or any peace table site if representatives of the Palestinian Liberation Organization are present or if any of its members are among the delegations from recognized Arab countries. The PLO, he contends, is terrorist outfit dedicated to wiping out Israel and its inhabitants.

He will not accept a return of the Arab territory taken in the 1967 war back to the original boundaries. This idea of Carter, he explained, would reduce Israel at one point to a strip nine miles wide which a hostile tank attack could cut in twain in a matter of minutes.

He is agreeable to restoring some of this occupied zone to Syria, Jordan and Egypt and suggests individual discussions with those countries as to the extent of the release.

Though preferring direct talks with his neighbors, Begin did raise the possibility of the U.S. refereeing those discussions. He mentioned New York City as a possible alternate site for a conference location.

The instant reaction from the Arab countries is that Begin's proposal is no offer whatever.

Consequently, when Cyrus Vance, our State Secretary, starts a projected tour to those states around August 1st, he may have difficulty in convincing them to return to Geneva.

Anwar Sadat, the Egyptian premier, who has been the most conciliatory among the Arab leaders, has said consistently that Begin misses the point in the Arab outlook.

The conquered territory, at least from Egypt's standpoint, is not the real issue, he declares.

Establishing the Palestinian refugees in their own homeland is what counts.

Begin and his predecessors resist the plan because it would carve territory out of Israel.

Though inconclusive, the Carter-Begin discussion was not a waste of time.

It gets the issues out into the open and should dispel some of the general opinion about Begin being intractable and totally unyielding.

One Of Those Pyrrhic Victories

Legislator Explains His Bill To Halt Strike Dole

Editor,

Is it fair to ask the citizens of Michigan, through their tax dollars, to pay for welfare benefits to people who are on strike? I do not believe it is. For this reason, I have requested that legislation be introduced which would prohibit people on strike from receiving benefits under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and General Assistance programs.

I am not against strikes or strikers. What I am opposed to is the present system where we are weakening the principles of collective bargaining by allowing strikers to collect welfare benefits.

Collective bargaining involves a private negotiation between two parties, both under economic stress, who must resolve their differences without government interference. Yet the government is interfering by subsidizing welfare benefits to strikers, thus relieving the economic stress to one of the parties involved in the bargaining. This is not fair to businesses nor the taxpayers in this State.

We must also consider both the direct and indirect costs which taxpayers incur when strikers are allowed to collect welfare benefits. During the General Motors strike in 1970, strikers collected more than $4 million in AFDC benefits over a four-month period, as well as over $10 million in Food Stamp benefits.

During the seven-month strike at Dow Chemical in 1974, the AFDC-U (Unemployed Father) caseload in Midland County jumped from an average of 209 cases to 561 cases per month, with expenditures averaging $119,307 per month.

During the 186-day strike against Mead Corporation, the AFDC-U caseload in Delta County increased tenfold when 500 of the 800 strikers received welfare, with expenditures rising from $12,332 per month to $91,493 per month.

We must examine the costs due to declines in sales and income tax revenues when a large scale strike takes place. These losses were estimated to have amounted to $5 million per week during the 1970 General Motors strike. In November of that year, Flint's merchant business was down 25 to 30 percent, and the city was losing $110,000 a week in withholding taxes alone. These facts necessitated lay offs of city employees in Flint and several other Michigan cities.

The fact that strikers are able to collect welfare benefits, in addition to strike benefits, prolongs a strike since workers are not faced with as great economic hardships during the strike. In fact, it is often possible that the striker can collect as much in non-taxable welfare benefits as he could earn on his job. And, in addition to receiving AFDC benefits, the family is also eligible for Food Stamps, Medicaid, Emergency Assistance, School Lunch programs and some paid social services, which also increase costs to the taxpayers.

It is the employer who is faced with the most economic hardships due to production stoppage, possible lay offs in other plants, and loss of customers. These pressures often cause the employer to agree to more liberal and costly contracts with the strikers, thus increasing the costs of the product and contributing to overall inflation of the economy. We clearly tip the cost-benefit scale in negotiations in favor of the employees when we allow them to collect welfare while on strike.

Union leaders argue that strikers are entitled to welfare benefits as a matter of right, since their tax dollars have contributed to welfare programs. Yet no individual has a right to any specific return from his taxes except the value of the benefits he receives as a citizen. Any childless taxpayer

AMA Maintains Its Record

WASHINGTON — After pouring millions of dollars into a decades-long battle against "socialized medicine," the American Medical Association (AMA) should have learned a lesson from the defeat and embarrassment it suffered when the federal Medicare program was established in 1965.

But nobody has ever accused the AMA of being sensitive to the nation's health care needs, and that organization proved once again at its recent House of Delegates meeting that it is either unable or unwilling to provide the leadership needed to cope with spiraling medical costs.

The scope of the problem was clearly defined by Joseph A. Califano Jr., Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, in an exceptionally candid and tough speech delivered at the San Francisco meeting of the AMA, which represents about half of the country's 375,000 physicians.

"Health care in America today (is) big business... a vast, sprawling, complex, highly expensive and virtually non-competitive industry" apparently incapable of dealing with "the overarching problem of runaway costs," noted Califano.

Health care now is the third largest industry in the United States, ranking behind only construction and agriculture. It employs more than 5 per cent of the country's work force and accounts for 8.6 per cent of the gross national product.

From 1963 to 1976, total health care expenditures more than tripled, from $39 billion to $139 billion. Costs currently are increasing at a rate two and one-half times the rise of the cost of living, and total health care expenditures probably will double by 1980.

"Reasonable cost has not been the strong suit of either American medicine or most of its physicians," said Califano. In 1976, the most recent year for which figures are available, the average family expenditure for health care was almost $1,800, or more than 10 per cent of the median $3,700 family income.

"There is virtually no competion among doctors or among hospitals," added Califano. "And, just as important, there is precious little competition among pharmaceutical companies or among laboratories."

Compounding the problem is the fact that the bills frequently are paid by neither patient nor physician but rather by Blue Cross, other insurance companies, Medicare or Medicaid.

The result is an industry described by Califano as "conscious of quality (but) insensitive to cost" with "many powerful incentives to spend more and few, if any, incentives to spend more efficiently."

In addition, he noted that the country's medical resources are grossly maldistributed, leaving residents of rural areas and central city slums with inadequate care "as physicians have moved to more lucrative practices in the suburbs." Manhattan has 800 doctors per 100,000 residents while Mississippi has fewer than 80.

The HEW secretary concluded by calling on the medical profession to provide the leadership needed to meet "the challenge of dramatically improving the cost-efficiency of our health care system." The AMA reacted predictably.

"Health is not the top priority in the new (Carter) administration. Cost control is," responded James H. Sammons, the AMA's executive vice president who warned that too much cost-consciousness could lead to "a second-rate medical care system."

As for his top priority, Sammons inveighed against the evils of the "cancerous, relentless, mindless blob" — the Washington bureaucracy which "sneaks under the doors" and "creeps in" from all directions.

The AMA has once again maintained its untarnished record of allowing the initiative for every major contemporary advance in financing health care — from Medicare to Medicaid of the past to national health insurance and health maintenance organizations now under consideration — to come from outside the physicians' insensitive trade association.

No Takers For Car Pools

WASHINGTON — Can America be persuaded to car pool?

The latest White House brainstorm for conserving energy is to subsidize commuters who agree to ride to work in car pools. On paper, it sounds attractive. It's so much nicer to reward people for voluntary cooperation than punish them to force them into line, as for instance by passing higher gasoline taxes.

But this latest plan does not seem destined to be any more successful than the 55 mph highway speed limit, which is ignored by all but the most conscientious.

A wide variety of localities and companies have tried for several years to encourage car pooling, to no avail. Some cities have set aside special car pool lanes during rush hours for autos carrying more than three passengers, but in most cases they have had to be abandoned because of too little use. Banks have volunteered to organize car pools, matching drivers and riders, but few customers have signed up. The highways are still clogged with automobiles, a majority of which hold only the driver.

The difficulty with car pools is that the concept is simply not compatible with either human nature or the American habit. Individuals prefer to operate on their own schedules, not someone else's. And the number of people who work in the same block, keep the same hours, and live within a short distance of each other could probably dance on the head of a pin.

So long as city residences are scattered all over the landscape, most workers are not going to live close enough to each other to make ride-sharing feasible. Work hours are a further complication. What does the employee who has to work overtime do when his car pool is scheduled to pull out promptly at 5:30 P.M.?

Car pooling as a new, preferred way of life would also conflict with two other Carter-Administration goals.

The President has indicated he wants people to buy smaller cars. But there is no way to fit four grown adults comfortably into a Chevrolet, say, or a Rabbit for two long rides a day. Smaller cars are designed, primarily with midsize in mind, for the back seat.

Car pooling also conflicts with Flextime, a new system of adjustable work-hours with which the Labor Department has been experimenting. Flextime allows works to come and go on their own schedule, rather than within an established frame of uniform hours.

This system, which has been highly praised by industries which have tried it, opens new opportunities to working mothers and students. It also allows workers to avoid the rush hour traffic jams by commuting before or after the peak periods. But their flexibility would make it impossible for them to be car poolers.

The sheer inconvenience of riding with other people twice a day for upwards of a half-hour is also a car pool deterrent. Familiarity breeds contempt, they say, and there is nothing more familiar than being jammed into a car with three other people on a regular basis.

Robert Burkholz, Otto Grau, Kenneth Wendzel, Roland Oselka, Clyde Lomahaugh, Walter Heyn, and Ernest Chase. Voting for the proposal were Commissioners W.C. Askew, Victor Greer, and Edward Matlin.

Commissioners Nancy Clark and Richard Camp abstained. The MMLA request sought an employee, to be paid with Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds, to conduct a survey of social and economic conditions of migrants living in Berrien county and their contributions to the county's economy. according to CETA Director Weldon Burden. The position had been authorized by the CETA Manpower Planning council last month, but the board of commissioners, as prime sponsor for CETA programs in the county, has the authority to override the planning council's decisions.

The resolution rejecting the request also noted "the board of commissioners feels adequate survey data is already available" dealing with migrants.

A hassle arose during the meeting, held at the old courthouse in Berrien Springs, when Burden informed commissioners of a catch in CETA regulations. He said the act says that a request cannot be disapproved without submitting reasons for the disapproval to the applicant and planning council before the vote.

Since the request had been tabled from last month's county board meeting and no reasons had been formulated, the board recessed twice to iron-out reasons stated in the resolution. Burden said CETA rules allow the applicant to appeal the disapproval.

The position requested by MMLA would have run for one year beginning in August.

In another matter, the board set a public hearing for Aug. 18 at 10 a.m. for a proposed $1.5 million marina on the St. Joseph river between Empire avenue and May street in St. Joseph township.

Developers of the Anchor Inn marina need county approval before the county's Economic Development Corp. can sell tax-exempt revenue bonds to finance a majority of the project. The proposed marina received approval of the St. Joseph township board earlier this week.

In other business, the board: —Allocated $17,200 for construction of two new bridges in Wexham township on Elm Valley road over the Close drain and over the south branch of the Galien river. The county's share is one-third of the total cost of $51,000, with the county road commission and township paying the other costs.

—Agreed to accept a compromise with the Penn Central railroad in which the railroad will pay $8,994 in delinquent property taxes for 1970 through 1976.

—Approved funding for the assistance bureau of $31,250 for one year ending in June, 1978.

—Hired Wayne C. Hatfield & Associates of Benton Harbor, subject to availability of funds, as architect for the proposed south county administration building. Commissioner Grau said the fee will be about five per cent of total construction costs if the county receives a federal grant for the building.

Pro Criminals Are Target Of Project

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

BERRIEN SPRINGS — A program aimed at reducing crime by identifying repeat offenders and giving them prosecution "high priority" was authorized yesterday by the Berrien county board of commissioners meeting in the old courthouse here.

The program, called Career

Criminal Prosecution, has been successful in other areas of the state and U.S. where it has been used, Prosecutor John Smietanka told the board. "We hope it will live up to its expectations here."

The board accepted a $110,100 grant for the program from the Michigan Office of Criminal Justice programs, and authorized expenditure of $5,510 in county funds for a local matching share. Ninety per cent of the funds federal money, disbursed by the state. The state and county each contribute five per cent.

Smietanka said the initial phase will run 15 months, effective immediately, and there is a possibility of a 12-month second phase.

Commissioners noted that acceptance of the funds does not obligate the county to third-year funding, as is required with some grants.

Two of the 13 prosecutors now on Smietanka's staff will be assigned to the unit, he said, while the grant will allow another assistant prosecutor to be hired "to pick up the slack." The new unit will also include a case coordinator to prepare cases and a secretary.

Smietanka defined a career criminal as "a person with a high probability of committing repeat offenses." He noted that some offenders have up to six cases pending in court at the same time. "If you stop them you'll stop a lot of crime," he said.

Smietanka said the career criminal program started in Washington, D.C., the Bronx, New York, and Oregon, and found a large number of crimes are committed by the same people, the aim of the program is to identify those people and give them cases a "high priority," and "we anticipate a higher conviction rate than usual."

He added that upon conviction, the prosecutor's office "will take an active role in requesting higher sentences" from judges. He said the courts have pledged 15 per cent of their time to the program, as have the state police in the county and the sheriff's department. A verbal pledge has also been received from the Benton Harbor police department, Smietanka said.

The career criminal program has been in operation in Wayne and Kalamazoo counties, and was recently offered to nine more counties in Michigan, said Chief Assistant Prosecutor Jeffrey Long. He said the prosecutor's office expects to have the program in operation within 75 days.

The program will also include a citizens advisory board, Smietanka said. Commissioner Otto Grau stated that when the program ends, the personnel in the program "will be absorbed into the prosecutor's office."

ACCEPTS AWARD: John Gillette, president of Berrien county Historical Association, yesterday accepted plaque for work in restoring old courthouse in Berrien Springs on behalf of association. Presentation was made during meeting of Berrien board of commissioners at old courthouse. Mike Smith, representing American Association of State and Local History groups, presented award praising association "for significant contribution to history."

Bankruptcy Court Bars V-M Property Auction

A hearing has been adjourned in U.S. Bankruptcy court in Kalamazoo on a temporary restraining order preventing the City of Benton Harbor from auctioning property of V-M Corp. which has petitioned for voluntary bankruptcy.

The hearing had been scheduled for today. The temporary restraining order was issued Tuesday by Judge David Nims after V-M filed the bankruptcy petition.

Judge Nims' office also announced the first meeting with creditors of V-M Corp. will be held Aug. 19 in the federal building in Kalamazoo.

The adjournment today was by stipulation of the parties, involved and means the temporary restraining order can continue until further notice, according to Yvonne Hughes, Benton Harbor city attorney.

The city had posted notice it would auction V-M's personal property because of non-payment of personal property taxes. The city padlocked V-M plants. City Manager Melvin Farmer Jr. said that has been modified and V-M is permitted to use its computer.

V-M, producer of stereo sets and record changers, was closed last week and Victor Miller, company president, said V-M couldn't meet the payroll because of a lack of cash.

Benson Named To State Panel

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gov. William Milliken has appointed St. Joseph township Supervisor Orval Benson to a special committee of 12 to review annexation petitions and determine in some cases whether the petitions are valid.

Benson, a long-time foe of annexation attempts by the Cities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, said: "I'm not exactly sure what the assignment is, but I'm willing to serve."

In announcing the formation of the committee this week, Milliken noted that annexation and boundary changes have been debated in the state for years. He said the committee also would make recommendations "for solving certain problem areas."

In 1970, the legislature extended the power of the Municipal Boundary Commission to include the review of petitions for annexation.

The commission's authority over annexations depends upon the size of the population in the area proposed for annexation. If a territory under consideration has a population of less than 100 persons, the commission has the authority to make the final determination.

If the population exceeds 100, the commission's decision becomes final only if no petitions for referendum on the question of annexation are filed within 30 days.

Also appointed to the commission were former Michigan Supreme Court Justice Michael O'Hara of Menominee, who will serve as chairman; Roy Levy Williams of Detroit, executive assistant to the governor on urban affairs; State Sens. Alvin DeGroot, R-Pigeon, and James DeSana, D-Wyandotte; State Reps. Thomas Brown, D-

Medic 1 ambulance personnel called cardiac arrest. Tretheway, husband of Lincoln township Supervisor Bernice Tretheway, was found in a state of cardiac arrest when Medic emergency medical technicians arrived at the Tretheway home at 7:30 p.m., according to Cindie Newell, Medic 1 dispatcher.

Airport Master Plan Hearing Slated July 28 At BH Library

A hearing will be held Thursday, July 28, to outline the scope of a master plan that will be developed for Ross field, the Twin Cities' airport. Lee Schick, airport manager, said consultants and airport officials will be present to describe objectives of the plan at the hearing at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Benton Harbor public library.

Schick said it will be the first of a series of public hearings on the master plan as required by federal regulations, and comments from the public are invited. The consulting firm of Landrum and Brown, Cincinnati, Ohio, has an $86,634 contract to draft the master plan for the immediate and long term development of Ross field. Schick said the plan will cover possible expansion of the runway system, operational and environmental concerns.

The Chessie Steam Special will run through southwestern Michigan Sunday. A headline in some editions of Thursday's Herald-Palladium erroneously said the day was Saturday.

Also, the train will only be stopping in Holland, Hartford, and St. Joseph, Chessie officials said today. Chessie's Cleveland office said in Thursday's story that the train would stop in Holland, Fennville, Hartford, Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, and New Buffalo, before arriving in Chicago.

The new arrival time in Chicago is 7:20 p.m. Chessie train, Chessie officials said today. The train will leave Holland at 1:20 p.m., Hartford at 2:35, and St. Joseph at 3:30. Tickets will be sold at the St. Joseph depot for $12 for adults wishing to ride from St. Joseph to Chicago. Children under four ride free.

The steam locomotive pulling 20 cars will be the first passenger train to make the Grand Rapids-Chicago run since April 30, 1971, when the Chesapeake and Ohio railway stopped passenger service in this area.

Sunday's run will be the next-to-last in the area for the steam train. Chessie has scheduled a run from Chicago to Hartford and return on July 31.

Receives Honor

PWP Award

Mrs. Deverna Hubbard of St. Joseph was honored during the 20th annual convention of Parents Without Partners for her "exceptional service" as international youth exhibits chairman.

Mrs. Dorothy Gilbert, also of St. Joseph, concluded her term as international-president of the 155,000-member organization, by presiding over the convention held July 6-10 in Boston.

More than 3,000 members attended the convention during which Mrs. Marilyn Stockelman of Cincinnati, Ohio, was named Single Parent of the Year. Mrs. Freda Mark of St. Louis, Mo., was elected incoming international president.

Parents Without Partners is for the widowed, divorced, separated or never married. The organization was established to develop and provide a broad, comprehensive program for the enlightenment and guidance of parents who do not have partners, to offer assistance on the special problems they and their children encounter in the single parent home, and the various readjustments involved.

Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Hubbard are members of Twin Cities chapter 151.

At the banquet climaxing the convention, Mrs. Gilbert read the following telegram from President Carter: "America's families are our most precious resource and most important social institution. I am deeply interested in the well-being of the American family and in what we, as a society, can do to strengthen and support family life. I am keenly aware of the special difficulties and stresses encountered by single parents as they endeavor to fulfill their important child rearing roles and provide their children with stability and a caring environment. Silk Prints On Fashion Horizon

Fall-Winter Shows Begin With Young, Romantic Look

By DANIELA PETROFF
AP Fashion Writer

ROME (AP) — Designer Andrea Orcicini dazzled a celebrity-studded audience this week with yards and yards of silk prints, swirled and pleated into a new young romantic look. The collection instantly made the Genoan newcomer a rising star on the Italian high fashion horizon.

"It's beautiful, it's young, it's me," exclaimed film star Elsa Martinelli, who has already selected some of the models for her fall-winter wardrobe. The baroque setting of the Casina Valadier atop the Spanish Steps overlooking the Roman skyline created the perfect background for the 19th century romantic elegance evoked by Orcicini.

As guests sipped orange champagne cocktails, the mannequins swirled past in floral and plaid combination silk print skirts, with solid-colored, wide-sleeved and ruffled-collared blouses, the whole buffed interrupted at the waist by a satin ribbon belt with a discreet floral bouquet tucked at the side. Orcicini chose antique shades of purple, blue and brown to give his clothes that just-dusted-out-of-grandmother's-trunk look, which greatly enhanced the nostalgic mood of the collection.

The ruffle was the romantic base, appearing in somber elegance around the high collar and shoulder of a wide-sleeved, tucked-at-the-cuff loose blouse. Shawls of the same print as the skirts and worn over the shoulders or tied at the waist added a carefree, youthful touch. Indian circle and paisley prints and gold-jeweled cuffs, worn in hair in studied disarray styled by Roman coiffeur Olivier, gave a Levantine breeze to the otherwise northern-inspired collection.

It was Orcicini's second appearance on the Italian high fashion catwalk. His limited debut during last winter's summer collection showings was only a prologue to his smashing success on the first night of the Rome fall-winter 1977-78 collections.

Other collections on opening day previewed a cozy winter as Millyskin and Tivoli showed their audiences how to have fun at keeping warm. For the supermodern look, Millyskin proposed a three-quarter-length jacket in bronze-colored kid with trim collar and cuff, and large, deep side pockets to keep the fingertips warm.

Worn with tight inside-the-bout pants, the outfit is topped by a cock-feathered hood that will be a sure show-stopper even on the coldest winter day.

Tivoli plays with the sweater look, introducing fox, mink or swamra pullovers with V-necks and poncho sleeves. The wide three-quarter sleeve which starts at the waist and ends at the cuff is the hugging element which replaces the more traditional cozy collar. All but a few of Tivoli's fur furs are collared.

Tivoli has also invented a new way of working fur. Called the Gaiure (waffled) look it gives the impression of being knitted rather than sewed.

For the under-21 jet-setters, Zingone, the children's high fashion designer, proposes an all-knit look — heavy knit three-quarter length sweaters and shorts in red and white stripes for boys and girls alike, worn with knee-length boots and matching hats.

Open House Sunday

BUCHANAN — Mr. and Mrs. Elton A. Orpurt Sr. of Indian Lake, Dovagiac, and Bonita Springs, Fla., will be honored at an open house Sunday, July 24 from 2 to 4 p.m. at First United Methodist church, Buchanan, in celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Friends and relatives are invited. Hosting the event will be their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elton A. Orpurt Jr. of Buchanan, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. William Radford of Buchanan and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lindt of Berrien Springs.

The Orpurts were married March 9, 1927, in Peru, Ind., and moved to Buchanan in 1933.

Prior to retiring in 1971, Orpurt founded Orpurt Plumbing and Heating, Inc., a family business for over 30 years.

The couple has eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

DOMESTICATED

About 6,000 B.C. man had settled in the Near East in rich valleys and had learned to domesticate plants and animals.

Parsley: Ever Ready Herb

One of the handiest bits of convenience on the grocery shelves today is the product, dehydrated parsley flakes.

Our great-grandmothers used to dry parsley and all kinds of herbs for their own use, but it wasn't until the end of World War II that parsley flakes were dehydrated and sold commercially. California, Texas and Louisiana are the big parsley-growing states, where both the moss-curl and flat-leafed plants thrive verily. In the speedy dehydrating process, eight parts of fresh parsley are concentrated to one.

Parsley flakes usually are sold in larger containers than most herbs and spices, says the American Spice Trade association, because they can be used freely and in a great variety of dishes. Since parsley is such a mild herb, one needn't even bother to measure very accurately.

Just shower it in. As with herbs generally, it is best to add parsley flakes during the last five minutes cooking time.

Parsley flakes are delicious in a vinaigrette sauce, such as you might like over snap beans or spinach. Or in parsley butters, the parsley flavor being released at once by the hot fat. To help preserve the bright green color, store parsley flakes in a dry place away from oven heat and direct sunlight.

NEW CASEWORKER APPOINTED

Agency Aids Child And Family

Frank La Claire has joined the staff of Child and Family Services of Michigan, 2000 South State street, St. Joseph, as a caseworker.

La Claire received a bachelor of arts degree in social studies and secondary education from Oakland University and has done some graduate study in social work at the University of Michigan.

Prior to accepting his present position, he was employed by Family Group Homes for Youth, Inc., of Ann Arbor where he supervised and worked with emotionally disturbed youth, including individual counseling.

La Claire and his wife, Linda, who is a counselor for Child and Family Services, reside in St. Joseph.

Child and Family Services, a United Way agency, offers services in the areas of foster care, family and individual counseling, problem pregnancy, adoption and homemakers.

La Claire has had experience in the foster care area and will also be doing adoptive studies, particularly with hard-to-place children.

Foster family care provides infants and children a temporary family situation until they are adopted or returned to their natural parent or parents. The need for foster care may be the result of divorce, chronic illness, neglect, illegitimacy or emotional instability.

Whenever possible, the child and natural family are reunited following rehabilitation of the child's family.

Six primary services are offered by Child and Family Services of Michigan, according to Lee M. Moss, executive director of the local United Way agency.

Family service counseling is provided to families of all income levels experiencing crisis, parent-child problems and alcohol related difficulties. Alcohol related problems account for the highest percentage of clients, Moss said. Fees for this service are based upon income level.

Adoptive services provides troubled and deprived infants and children with permanent families. This is the only non-sectarian infant adoption agency in the area. A major portion of the staff time is devoted to the placement of handicapped children, Moss said.

Problem pregnancy counseling offers guidance to individuals and families facing unwanted or unplanned pregnancies. Counseling offers guidance in considering the alternatives of adoption, abortion or keeping the expected child.

Homemaker service places trained men and women in homes where family crisis or emergency requires help for routine household tasks. This service is geared primarily to the elderly.

Epilepsy counseling is offered by Child and Family Services. The agency serves as area counselor for the Epilepsy Center of Michigan, assisting patients and their families to adjust to epilepsy.

Foster family care provides infants and children with temporary family environments.

ASSUMES POSITION: Frank La Claire, center, a new case worker with Child and Family Services of Michigan, St. Joseph, discusses responsibilities with two foster parents, Mrs. Cecil Carmichael of Hartford, left, and Mrs. David Chapman of Niles. La Claire has previously worked in the foster care area and will also be doing adoptive studies, particularly with hard-to-place children.

Compiling Directory On Nutrition Services

Berrien County Nutrition Council is compiling a directory of nutrition programs and services available to county residents.

Schools, public and private agencies, hospitals, etc., will be included in this survey, according to Mary Search, Berrien County Extension Home Economist.

Persons are asked to contact Mrs. Search at the Berrien County Courthouse in St. Joseph to list any new or existing programs in the new directory.

This project is being undertaken to determine existing agencies in Berrien county offering nutrition services in order to identify the services now being offered, define the target populations reached by individual agencies and discover where nutritional services may be duplicated.

The council will also assess areas of need for nutritional services which are not met by any existing agency or program, Mrs. Search said.

The council, which was formed this spring, currently has 11 members.

Lydia Zick, maternal and infant clinic nutritionist with the Berrien County Health Department is the council's chairman. Mrs. Search is secretary.

Other members of the council include Betty Finset, director, school lunch program, Benton Harbor Area schools; Betty Guentler, nutritionist, Senior Citizens Nutrition Project; Paye Hingston, WIC nutritionist; Esther Kutz, school health educator, St. Joseph Area schools.

Also, Patricia Mitch, director, dietetic program, Andrews University; Nancy Stock, therapeutic dietitian, Berrien General Hospital; Marian Sundquist, school nurse, New Buffalo; Ellen Scarlett, Extension Home Economist, and Mike Wind, health educator, Berrien County Health Department.

Delicious Eating

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

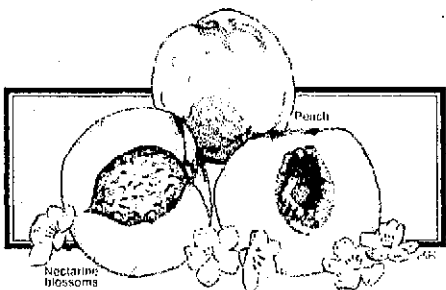

Peaches and nectarines are cousins — the nectarine is similar in looks to a peach except for having a smooth skin and what the experts call a more vinous flavor than the peach. Vinous means wine-like. Both fruits are luscious, naturally sweet and juicy.

SHOPPING TIPS: Peaches — The first rule of peach buying is to insist on mature peaches only, no green ones. A peach does not gain sugar after picking, since it has no starch to convert to sugar. Select as near tree-ripe as possible. Maturity is indicated by yellowish ground color, red blush and general absence of greenness.

Nectarines — Look for smooth, plump, highly colored, unblemished fruit. Like the peach, the nectarine does not gain sugar after harvest and must be picked well matured to be satisfactory. Mature fruit will soften and become juicy. Avoid hard, dull fruits and any that show shriveling, a sign of immaturity.

TO STORE: Hold the fruit at room temperature until soft enough to eat, then refrigerate and use as soon as possible. If any sign of brown rot shows up, use with extra speed because it works fast.

NUTRITION: Peaches and nectarines can be used interchangeably in recipes. While the chief use is eating out of hand, both fruits are delicious, too, in salads, compotes, fruit cups, to top cereals, as garnish for meats or poultry, sliced and topped with cream or ice cream for shortcake, in frozen desserts such as ice cream, sherbet and parfaits, in pies, tarts, puddings.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

No Wonder She's Friendless

Dear Ann: For seven years I've been married to a man who can't seem to make it financially. I think it must be his lousy personality.

When we were first married we lived in Herb's home town because he worked for his dad. The business was crawling with relatives. Herb's dad died the following year and the usual family in-fighting began. I hated the town (nothing but Hicks) and was glad when Herb agreed to accept a job in another city.

To make a long story short, he was transferred four times in six years and each place was worse than the last.

Yesterday Herb got a call from his brother. He has bought out the other relatives and wants us to come back to the Hick town. Herb will be a part-owner and vice president of the business.

I hate the town. There is not one person there I'd care to associate with. Shouldn't a wife have something to say about where the family lives? Doesn't she have SOME rights? Please answer soon. I am — Mad, Mad, Mad.

Dear M. M. M. Yes, a wife has some rights. But with rights come obligations — and one of those obligations is to make a home wherever her husband can make a living.

I suspect someone in your family has a "lousy personality," but I don't think it's Herb. If you consider people "Hicks," they know it. Small wonder you have no friends.

Defrost, kiddo. Learn to give. Make up your mind you're going to contribute something to the community. Small towns can be great fun. (I know.) Your husband needs a hand — not a foot. It's not the towns you've been living in — it's you.

We're Pleading

Dear Ann: After two years of anonymous letters to others, about us, and many anonymous phone calls (which we taped) we were shocked to discover that they were perpetrated by a relative of some people we know.

Legal action (for which we have proof) would be expensive, exhausting and embarrassing. We are pleading with this person, for God's sake, get some help for yourself. What you are doing is a symptom of mental illness. If you continue we may have to call the police and we don't want to. Sign us — Compassionate And Understanding.

Dear Compassionate: Thousands of people who read your letter will feel uncomfortable. They will wonder if you mean THEM.

I hope every person who is ill at ease will assume he (or she) has been discovered and take your advice. The poison pens and telephone crooks are sickies and they need professional help.

Not A Widow

Dear Ann Landers: I was divorced from my husband for 12 years. He passed away recently. Can I refer to myself as his widow? Would it be legal? Please answer in the paper. I've had a lot of arguments over this. — Bay City

Dear Bay: I am not a lawyer and cannot give legal advice. If it's a common-sense answer you want I would say, "No." A widow is a woman whose husband has died. The man who died was not your husband.

It goes without saying that if he remarried, you should not refer to yourself socially as his widow. That title belongs to another.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

It's Time To Leave

According to most of the women I have talked with, husbands notoriously hate parties. The majority of them seem to have a low threshold of tolerance for standing, talking, and keeping awake when someone is telling them about their dog's hysterectomy.

I always feel sorry for newlyweds or couples who do not know one another well enough to know when they want to split. They just stand there trying to read one another's faces. When we were first married, I remember standing at a party absolutely miserable with an anchovy under my tongue to prolong swallowing, my varicose veins thumping and thinking, "Lord, if my husband wants to leave now... give me a sign."

At that moment, someone bumped into me, spilled a drink down my back, and I swallowed the anchovy. As I ran to the privet hedge to spit up I noted my husband was right behind me. It was apparent then that God worked in strange ways.

Usually, however, it is my husband who wants to leave a party first, so he got the idea to devise a series of signals to tell me when it is time to move along. How can you tell if your husband wants to leave a party?

1. When you hear a car pulling out of the driveway and it's yours.

2. When he starts making necklaces out of the raw shrimp.

3. When he disappears from the room and changes clothes — to his pajamas and robe.

4. When he starts emptying the ashtrays and putting the dog out and checking doors — and he isn't the host.

5. When he turns to the dog and says, "I don't believe we've met."

6. When his face breaks out in a chip dip rash.

7. When he whispers in your ear, "I think I hear my mother calling," and she lives in St. Louis.

8. When he's staring intently at the TV set and it's showing test patterns.

9. When he asks a guest in a loud voice where she buys her Supp-Hose.

10. When he takes the drink out of your hand, hangs your handbag over your arm, puts your coat over your shoulder and says, "Erma's tired."

On a subtlety scale, he's right behind a bar stool proposition and a bulldozer, but you get the idea.

It works both ways. The other night I saw him emerged in a long conversation with a well-stacked blonde. Subtly, I spilled a drink down his coat and whispered, "God works in strange ways."

Your Birthday

Sat. July 23, 1977

Many changes could occur for you this coming year. Some might pop up quite unexpectedly. However, if you can flow with events you'll turn them to your advantage.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A matter that you thought you had all figured out as a shoo-in may take a surprising twist and be far more complicated than you had envisioned. To find out more of what lies ahead for you send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something concerning certain friends may have been sticking in your craw. Don't hurt it out in front of them today or they may become ex-friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You could be a fast check-grabber today, so don't mingle with the wrong crowd. You may get into a group as slow as you are swift.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your respect for pompous individuals is nil today. However, don't cross swords with one where you're overmatched.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Erratic or rebellious behavior today could cause you grief that could easily be avoided. Discipline yourself to be stable and responsible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Making irresponsible demands of friends today will evoke a response that may shock and dismay you. Think carefully before you voice your requests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually reliable allies will be more concerned with their problems today than with yours. They could work against you instead of with you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Level with the boss if you're not capable of doing something. If you fake it and mess things up, he'll really be upset.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Business situations you feel to be under control could undergo a sudden change today. Unless you're prepared to think on your feet, you could be caught short.

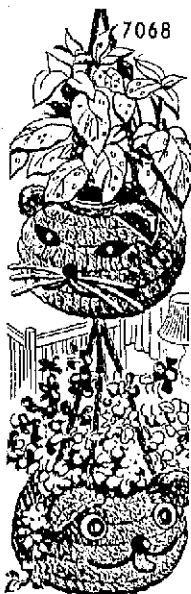

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do nothing today that could upset the precarious balance at home. A few wrong moves could put the whole household in a turmoil.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Treat co-workers with utmost consideration today. If you take off your kid gloves, they may put on their boxing gloves.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your practicality in the management of resources could suddenly desert you today. You could impulsively do something both costly and wasteful.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — It seems very hard to get some information about emphysema. I am afflicted with it and want to learn all about it and what I can do to help myself. I have been to three physicians, but only when I needed to see a doctor because I had become congested and needed an antibiotic shot.

They'd say exercise just enough, not too much or too little, but what is too much or too little?

After a shot of penicillin I feel just great for about a week. I've been told that I shouldn't get it too often as I'd build up an immunity to it. Is that right?

Whatever you can tell me about emphysema would be appreciated, not only by myself but I know by many others who are afflicted and would like to learn more about it.

DEAR READER — Emphysema is a chronic form of lung disease. It is characterized by constriction of the small air passages inside the lungs.

Think of the air sacs that are filled with air as little balloons. At the opening of the balloons is a muscular band and it constricts to narrow the opening of the balloon. As a result it is hard to squeeze all the air out of the balloon. The tiny air sacs remain overdistended with stale air because it is hard to force all the air out.

To give you a better picture of how the lungs work I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-4. Keeping Your Lungs Fit. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Because the movement of oxygen and carbon dioxide is not normal the person with emphysema has trouble increasing the oxygen supply to his body. That usually means a person is limited in how much exercise he can do. How much exercise you can do depends upon how much oxygen can be delivered to your working muscles. Without the oxygen you cannot release the energy needed for muscular work.

That is why your doctors are vague on how much exercise you can do. The best rule is to do mild exercise, such as walking, which is continuous, that you can do over a longer period of

Carter's Faith May Do Him In--Prof

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Evangelical religious beliefs and American values don't mix in the political arena, says a Michigan State University professor.

And President Carter's religious philosophy could get him in trouble with Americans on several issues, especially defense, unemployment, energy and the Middle East, says religious studies professor W. Fred Graham.

Carter's faith emphasizes personal relationships with God and reliance on the Bible, while many Americans tend to glorify the nation ahead of God. Graham explained at a recent seminar.

"Carter knows 'American religion' and evangelical faith are not the same thing, but sometime I think he forgets," he said.

"He has shown his opposition to 'war-mongering' by his stand on the B-1 bomber and clashed with the 'American religion' idea that it's better to be practical (store up weapons) than spiritual (pursue peace)," said Graham, a Presbyterian minister.

"His concern with unemployment arises out of a Biblical sense of justice," and references in both testaments to how the poor should be treated, he added.

But America's "work ethic" considers welfare a "shame because hard work gets people to the top and those not getting anywhere have only themselves to blame," Graham said.

He may also have problems with notions that other people are somewhat inferior to Americans, who live in the greatest land on earth, and that God has a special love for the United States, the professor added.

Carter, however, believes as the Bible teaches that there is no distinction between peoples and that a chosen people must suffer extra, Graham explained. "The Hebrew prophets of the Old Testament called down God's ire against the very type of self-congratulating religion that the 'American religion' is," he said.

Another American dogma has caused the furor over Carter's energy-saving proposals, Graham explained.

That's the belief that people in this land should be nearly unlimited in collecting material possessions and anything preventing that is probably Communist, he said.

Carter might be expected to sympathize more with Israelis than Arabs because Israel's existence is considered a fulfillment of Biblical prophecy, Graham said.

But Carter has "gone beyond" the evangelical and placed his concern for peace above moral or territorial boundaries, Graham explained.

New Victim Aid Bill Filed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislation to expand the state's upcoming program to aid crime victims has been introduced in the state Senate.

The bill would let the state provide compensation for persons injured in actions of domestic violence.

The original law, which takes effect in October, did not provide help for people injured in domestic fights.

Like the initial law, the bill is sponsored by Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Deerborn, who is running for governor. He said Thursday that a study of the law has convinced him there is no risk of fraudulent claims being filed by persons claiming injury in a home squabble.

The law permits awards of up to $15,000 to persons physically injured as a direct result of a crime.

Thais, Cambodia Make War

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (AP) — Thai troops backed by artillery and aircraft battled again today with Cambodian forces in the third day of a bloody border dispute, Thai military commanders said.

They reported no new Thai casualties. At least 17 Thais were killed and about 50 others wounded in clashes Wednesday and Thursday.

The fighting centers around the village of Noi Parai, 140 miles east of Bangkok, an area of rice paddies and scrub land claimed by both Thailand and Cambodia.

Reports said Thai artillery and aircraft, hampered by monsoon rains, were attempting to knock out Cambodian emplacements around the village.

The black-clad Cambodian Communist troops, reportedly about 100 yards from Thai forward positions, countered with small-arms fire and rocket-propelled grenades.

A military spokesman said Thai troops would not push into Cambodia because "it would allow a third or fourth hand to intervene in the matter which would lead to war between the two countries." He did not elaborate.

Thai sources said Cambodian casualties were high, but they gave no estimates.

Officials of Thailand's rightwing military government had said earlier they received reports that 30 Cambodians were killed in the previous fighting, but again there was no confirmation.

Thai Foreign Minister Upadit Pacharinyangkun told reporters in Bangkok today that Thailand would send an urgent protest note to Cambodia. He said he did not know the reason for the fighting but suspected it may have erupted over frontier demarcation. Both countries claim the area as their own.

The firefight began when military patrols of both countries suddenly confronted each other in the disputed area. The Cambodians, believed to number 300, showered the Thai infantrymen and border policemen with rocket-propelled grenades and possibly mortars. The Thais called in tanks, helicopter gunships and fixed-wing aircraft to pound the Cambodians.

Border police officials said Thai troops at one point knifed about 500 yards into Cambodian territory as the fighting swayed back and forth across the frontier.

Most of the Thai troops finally retreated about six miles to this border district capital.

Bangkok Post reporter Prasit Saengruang, one of three Thai newsmen wounded in the fighting, said he and about 12 Thai soldiers were caught in a U-shaped encirclement by the Cambodians.

"I heard Khmer Rouge (Cambodian Red) men and women shouting in Thai to kill us all," Prasit said. The two sides were about 50 yards apart and Thai armor and aircraft were beginning to strike at the Cambodian positions.

After 17 hours under the Cambodian guns, Prasit and six other survivors from his group managed to escape the entrapment by crawling through thorny grass toward the Thai reinforcements.

Stadium Bond Plan Aired

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Officials trying to speed up construction of the proposed Olympia II stadium in Pontiac Township have introduced a second bond plan after the first was killed.

Oakland County Commissioner Niles Olson said Thursday the new plan would let the county's building authority sell revenue bonds to build the stadium if the township's Economic Development Corporation (EDC) were declared illegal.

The City of Detroit is challenging the EDC in a lawsuit now pending in the state appeals court. The EDC was upheld in Oakland County Circuit Court.

Detroit contends the township had no legal right to use the EDC to lure existing business away from the city.

Construction of the proposed 18,000-seat arena has been stalled as the lawsuit continues. Investors generally will not buy bonds if the sale is challenged in court.

Olson said the Detroit lawsuit is a "stalling tactic." He said his plan, if approved by the full board, would allow immediate sale of bonds and the start of construction.

The future home of the National Hockey League's Detroit Red Wings would be located across the street from the Pontiac Silverdome.

Hubbard Serious Campaigner

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Dearborn's partially disabled mayor has announced that he is genuinely serious about running again, even though he is honorary chairman of his son's mayoral campaign.

Orville Hubbard, 74, a stroke victim confined to a wheelchair and unable to utter entire statements, answered "yes," Thursday when asked if he was serious about running again.

Two police bodyguards had wheeled Hubbard — who has been mayor since 1942 — into the city clerk's office Wednesday to pick up nominating petitions.

Hubbard's mayoral candidate son, Frank, said his father was "having a little fun" by picking up the petitions.

But Dad shook his head and uttered an emphatic "no" Thursday when asked if taking out the petitions was just a lark.

He then was wheeled back to the clerk's office and a second son, City Clerk John Jay Hubbard, issued his father another set of petitions.

The mayor — wearing a

"Frank Hubbard" campaign button — picked up 20 signatures in the hall outside his old office from people such as the acting mayor, a city councilman and the city's service director.

"He acts as though he really wants to do it," Service Director Maureen Keane said. "It's his style — he loves to shock people."

Frank continued to maintain his father is not running.

"What can I say?" he asked. "I think the mayor has shown a very masterful stroke. He's shown he wants to throw a lot of glamour into the campaign."

He added, however, that he would withdraw if his father proved to be serious.

Record Crowd Of Lawmakers Due At National Conference

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A record number of state lawmakers is expected to attend this year's National Conference of State Legislatures next month in Detroit, according to organizers.

Based on registration and housing reservations, about 2,000 lawmakers and aides will stay at the Detroit Plaza Hotel for the Aug. 2-5 meeting, said state Sen. Anthony Derezinski, D-Muskegon, chairman of the Michigan Legislature's coordinating committee.

That would be about 400 more than attended the 1976 meeting in Kansas City, he said.

The delegates will hear speeches from former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger; James Schlesinger, energy assistant to President Carter; ecologist Barry Commoner; and Atlantic Richfield President Thornton Bradshaw.

Jobless Aid Bill Introduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Michigan congressman has introduced legislation to help states that face huge unemployment compensation debts.

Michigan businesses owe some $124 million, after borrowing funds to meet compensation demands during the recent recession. The only present method of paying the debt, which comes due in two years, is a penalty tax on payrolls.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Bob Carr, a Lansing Democrat, would set up a new loan repayment system under which the federal government would pay part of a state's unemployment compensation costs.

The amount paid by Washington would vary from 60 per cent for a state with a jobless rate of 6 to 7 per cent to 75 per cent for a state with more than 8 per cent of its workers out of a job.

Michigan's unemployment rate was 6.8 per cent in June.

The bill would ease the pressures of paying back the current debt. And it would set up a permanent system of extended jobless benefits, to replace the current system which has required five temporary emergency renewals by Congress in the last few years.

Crew Abandons Burning Tanker

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Fire broke out in the engine room of an oil tanker in the Mississippi River near here today, forcing all 33 crewmen to abandon ship, the Coast Guard said.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the 673-foot Dauntless Colcotrons, loaded with crude oil, was en route to the Tennessee refinery dock at Chalmette, about five miles downstream from here, when the fire started.

The crewmen were reported safe on a dock, the spokesman said.

Egypt, Libya Clash At Border

CAIRO (AP) — The Arab League today was trying to mediate the increasingly bloody dispute between Egypt and Libya, who accused each other of provoking an air and armor battle on their border in the North African desert.

Mahmoud Riad, secretary-general of the Arab organization, reportedly sought to convene an emergency meeting of foreign ministers of member nations to resolve the dispute.

After Thursday's Egyptian-Libyan clash, Riad issued a statement deploring the "terrible incidents along the border" and urging the two sides not to escalate the conflict.

In reporting the battle, Cairo said Libyan forces had invaded Egypt from the west and were repelled. The Libyans said Egyptian troops had attacked a Libyan village, killing women and children.

The fighting near the Mediterranean Sea at the northern end of the Egyptian-Libyan frontier was the fourth border clash reported in the past month between the two feuding neighbors, which once planned to merge into one nation.

"There has been fighting but we have not declared war," an Egyptian military spokesman said after Thursday's battle.

A military communique issued here said Egypt counterattacked "in retaliation for Libyan aggression and to secure Egypt's western border."

Libya's official Arab Revolution News Agency (ARNA) carried a 1,500-word statement from an "official spokesman," naming Egypt as the aggressor and accusing Cairo of pursuing an "imperialistic policy."

Cairo radio said the Egyptian air force shot down two Libyan planes and that ground forces "destroyed 40 tanks and 30 Libyan army trucks, and took 12 military prisoners from the 9th Libyan armored division as well as 30 saboteurs." Cairo said no Egyptian soldiers were killed, but several were wounded and one truck was lost.

READING ABOUT CLASH: Cairo residents read semi-official Al Akbar newspaper Thursday which front-paged news of clashes between Egypt and Libya along northern border. Akbar's banner reads: "Libyan aggression by armor, artillery, and aircraft." (AP Wirephoto)

Tripoli gave no account of its casualties, but said scores of Egyptian soldiers defected and joined the Libyans.

The Libyan news agency said the fighting followed attempts by the Libyan army earlier this week to chase Egyptian troops out of positions they took up inside Libyan territory a few months ago.

Cairo Radio said the worst previous border clash took place two days ago. It said the crews of 20 Libyan military vehicles were killed, and the vehicles destroyed, and nine Egyptians were killed.

The Libyan statement said Palestinian guerrilla chieftain Yasser Arafat tried unsuccessfully Tuesday to mediate between Cairo and Tripoli. It said an earlier mediation effort by Arafat last November also failed, as did similar attempts by the presidents of Guinea and Togo.

Oil-rich Libya and its economically troubled neighbor to east announced plans for a union in August 1972. The proposed merger soon fell apart and relations between the two nations have soured steadily.

Libya's staunchly religious leader, Muammar Khadafi, accused Egypt of adopting corrupt Western ways in violation of the Koran, Islam's book of scriptures.

Khadafi, who rejects any Arab settlement with Israel, also denounced Egypt for agreeing to a cease-fire after the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has labeled Khadafi a "madman" and has accused him of initiating a series of plots against the Egyptian government.

According to Cairo radio, fighting flared when "a force of Libyan armored cars supported by artillery opened fire on the Egyptian military post at Salami, forcing Egyptian troops to confront the aggressor and chase them back to the village of Musaid (on the Libyan side of the border)."

They're Fed Up

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — The Ely Township Board of Supervisors says it's fed up with children being able to watch X-rated movies by sneaking through the woods to get within viewing distance of a drive-in theater. So the board voted unanimously at its meeting Thursday to ban the sale or display of pornographic materials in the rural township southwest of Marquette.

The Evergreen Drive-In Theatre so far is the only firm displaying X-rated material in the community of 1,200. But supervisors said local children have been watching the movies from the woods. The ordinance will be sent to the state Supreme Court for a review of its constitutionality before taking final effect.

Restaurant Owners Face Food Charges

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The owners of the Pontiac restaurant linked last March to the worst outbreak of botulism in the nation's history were to be arraigned today on two misdemeanor charges, according to Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson.

Trinidad Martinez and his wife Carmen, owners of the restaurant known at the time of the outbreak as Trini and Carmen's, face charges of using noncommercially processed foods and supplies Patterson said.

The Martinez' corporation, T.C. Properties Inc., also was named in a warrant.

Massage Parlors Are Regulated

HOUSTON (AP) — Massage parlor patrons must register their names and addresses and parlor employees must meet a dress code and complete a one-year college level course in human anatomy and physiology, under regulations approved by the Harris County Commissioners.

The regulations, which apply to unincorporated areas of the county, also prohibit a customer from receiving a massage from a parlor employee of the opposite sex.

Mrs. E.B. White Is Dead At 84

BROOKLIN, Maine (AP) — Katharine Sergeant White, who as first fiction editor of The New Yorker was credited with helping establish the careers of writers such as Vladimir Nabokov, John O'Hara, Mary McCarthy and Ogden Nash, is dead at the age of 84. Mrs. White, the wife of author and editor E.B. White, died Wednesday in Blue Hill Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Each charge is a misdemeanor carrying a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail and a $100 fine.

Investigators traced the botulism to home-canned peppers served in a hot sauce at the restaurant March 28. Forty-five persons were hospitalized by April 7 but none died.

Patterson said, "Investigations and interviews indicate a probability that the home-canned peppers were underprocessed when pressure cooked. The peppers were mixed into a hot sauce at the restaurant by a cook who believed this was the proper procedure."

Patterson said several employees have indicated it was the restaurant's normal practice to use home-canned peppers when fresh peppers were not available.

The restaurant was closed for nearly three months after the outbreak. It recently reopened under the name La Familia Martinez. Several persons at the reopening party wore T-shirts bearing the slogan "Survivor."

About 30 patrons have filed civil suits against the restaurant owners stemming from the botulism.

Explanation Of Zoning Districts

Public hearing is scheduled Aug. 1 on proposed new zoning ordinance for St. Joseph. Here are the 12 zoning districts on the map under the proposed code: R-1: suburban residential (single-family). R-2: two-family residential. R-3: multi-family (apartment complexes). OC: office-commercial (offices and only those commercial uses supportive of offices). C-1: limited local commercial (neighborhood shopping). C-2: local commercial. C-3: general commercial. I-1:

light industrial. I-1a: light industrial with some limited commercial uses. I-2: heavy industrial. OS: open space (preservation of environmentally sensitive areas). WRD: water recreation development (to encourage a limited number of recreational or related uses compatible with the aesthetics and environment of the lake front area. Enlargement of downtown portion of this map showing area of major change appears on opposite page.

AREA OF MAJOR CHANGE: This enlargement of portion of new zoning map shows area of St. Joseph most affected by proposed zoning changes. In Silver Beach area, upper left, an approximate six-block residential area would be included in an entirely new zoning district called water recreation development zone. Area is presently zoned two-family residential. Designation would make residential structures non-conforming and subject to restrictions on rebuilding and renovating them. Beach area south of Park street would change from two-family to single-family. Farther east, much residential area north of Winchester and Michigan would change from two-family to single-family. Remaining two-family on new map covers about 96 lots. Map also consolidates area north of Broad and east of Main streets into single office-commercial district.

Sterilization Rivals Pill In Birth Control

NEW YORK (AP) — Sterilization of both sexes has become so popular a method of birth control that it now rivals the pill and is the most commonly used method of birth control among couples married 10 years or more, according to a study.

A study of 3,403 married white men and women indicated that about 6.8 million couples had chosen surgical sterilization to prevent unwanted birth, compared to 7.1 million wives using the pill. An additional 1.1 million persons were sterilized for medical reasons.

The survey, conducted in 1975, is the fourth in a series of National Fertility Studies conducted at Princeton University. It was released Thursday.

The percentage of married couples who use sterilization for birth control almost quadrupled in 10 years, jumping from 8.8 per cent in 1965, to 16 per cent in 1970 and to 31.3 per cent in 1975, the survey said.

The survey indicated that the pill was still predominant among the young and newly married, while sterilization was more prevalent among those married 10 years or more as well as among couples who have had all the children they intend to have.

The use of condoms dropped by half between 1965 and 1975 and the use of diaphragms declined slightly, the survey said.

Intrauterine devices, or IUDs, gained in popularity between 1965 and 1975, but declined in use in the following two years. The researchers suggested that publicity about the dangers of the Dalkon shield IUD may have frightened women about IUDs in general.

The survey indicated that female sterilization has been increasing a bit more rapidly than male sterilization, but the percentage of marriages where the male was sterilized was about the same as where the female was sterilized.

The study was conducted by Princeton University professors Charles F. Westoff, who is director of the institution's Office of Population Research, and by Norman B. Ryder, faculty research associate in the office. It was funded by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

The analysis, appearing in the current issue of Perspectives magazine, a publication of Planned Parenthood Federation of America, was done by Westoff and by research assistant Elise F. Jones.

Their conclusions were drawn from data gathered in interviews with white women who had been married by age 25. The women had been married only once to men who also had been married only once and for more than five but fewer than 25 years.

The researchers said they had adjusted any biases which may have resulted from the choice of the study group to come up with national estimates. They concluded that: —35.5 per cent of couples (one or both spouses) who have had all the children they want rely on sterilization, in contrast to

Method Quadruples In 10 Years

24.1 per cent who use the pill. The sterilization figure was 20 per cent in 1970.

—Half of couples married 10 years were surgically sterilized by 1975. Although there has been a slightly higher rate of female sterilization, about the same percentage of men and women have been sterilized.

Begin Is Pleased With Carter Talks

By MARCUS ELLISON Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin seems almost overwhelmed by the harmony he has found with President Carter in his Washington talks. But although Carter has accepted Begin's blueprint for Mideast peace talks, the outlook is cloudy.

Begin has proposed, in effect, to shelve existing proposals for Mideast peace, and start from scratch in direct negotiations between Israel and the Arab states of Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

The Israeli leader is convinced that once left to negotiate privately, the adversaries can reach an agreement.

But the gap between the Arab and Israeli positions is so vast that many experts doubt it can be narrowed by October, the month that Begin and Carter are proposing for a Mideast peace conference.

The Arabs insist unanimously that Israel must vacate every inch of land it captured in the 1967 war, and give the Palestinians statehood.

Begin reportedly is willing to trade parts of the Sinai Desert and Golan Heights for peace treaties, but he is refusing to make any commitments in advance of peace talks. He is opposed to giving up any part of the Occupied West Bank, and rejects any Palestinian statehood that would bring the Palestine Liberation Organization to pre-eminence.

The Americans have favored virtually total withdrawal and a Jordan-linked Palestinian "homeland." This caused many to expect a collision between Begin and the Americans. But instead, the impression is of harmony. "There was an collusion with the United States," says Begin. "On the contrary, we have deepened the friendship between our two countries."

Some observers believe Carter resolved to be nice to Begin at all costs because the only alternative in handling the fiercely principled Israeli would be to pressure him. And as one observer put it, "The Americans studied Begin's personality closely, and they knew they could not head him, only break him."

Other Israelis are convinced Begin simply made an enormous impression on Carter with the eloquently persuasive way he argued his case. The sometime lawyer came to Washington "like a court attorney knowing he had to impress the toughest jury of his life," said one observer.

So thorough was Begin's groundwork that he even asked his aides to check atlases for U.S. towns with Biblical names. Thus, when Carter asked him to cease constructing new Jewish settlements in the West Bank until the Geneva talks, Begin reportedly replied: "Mr. President, would you ask Jews not to settle in Bethlehem, Pa. Then how can you ask them not to settle in Bethlehem, in the land of our fathers?"

Bethlehem is in the West Bank, which Begin regards as part of the Jewish Promised Land.

That conversation, reported by Israeli sources, took place in a private meeting which Begin later said went so well that "for the first time in days I slept like a child."

But there also were signs that Carter and Begin were far from full agreement on the terms for Mideast peace. Carter said he would now be "reticent" and refrain from making pronouncements on how the conflict should be solved. But he also said he would stick by his public statements, which include the call for withdrawal.

Sri Lanka Voters Oust Woman Prime Minister

By PAUL CHUTKOW

Associated Press Writer COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — In a stunning election landslide, the opposition United National party today ousted Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike, the world's only woman chief of government.

The vote, continuing a Sri Lankan tradition of unseating incumbents, made 70-year-old opposition chief Juntas Richard Jayewardene the new leader of this island nation south of India.

With three-quarters of the vote counted from Thursday's national elections, his party had captured 105 seats and was well on its way to securing the two-thirds majority it said it needed to bring Sri Lanka "a new society."

Mrs. Bandaranaike's Sri Lanka Freedom party had won a total of only three seats, including her own. An ethnic minority party won 15 seats, and the rest were scattered among other minor parties.

The austere Jayewardene had spent four decades near the center of power in Sri Lanka, the former Ceylon, but he had never before held the top job.

After a campaign blending capitalist and social welfare policies, Jayewardene had been expected to do well in the voting. Sri Lanka's eighth parliamentary election since gaining independence from Britain in 1948. But the results surpassed his most optimistic expectations.

Jayewardene was to take over the prime ministership formally later today or Saturday.

The island's National Security Council mapped strategy for a smooth transition of power. Thursday's voting was peaceful. During the campaign, 13 persons were reported killed in political violence in this nation of 14 million.

The defeat of Mrs. Bandaranaike, 62, ending a seven-year term, leaves the world without a woman national leader for the first time in years. The widow of a former prime minister, she became the world's first woman prime minister in 1960 elections. She held power then for five years.

She was the third leader in the region to be turned out of office this year. India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi lost national elections in March, and Pakistani President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto was removed by the army earlier this month.

Like Mrs. Gandhi, Mrs. Bandaranaike alienated voters by imposing a repressive national emergency, curbing political and press freedom and extending parliament beyond its elected term.

Under the Sri Lankan constitution, Mrs. Bandaranaike need not formally resign. She is deemed to have resigned as soon as the last results are announced.

Jayewardene said on the eve of the election that he intends to ask all political parties to join his cabinet in a "grand coalition" to cope with the country's economic crisis, marked by high unemployment and a 30 per cent annual inflation.

He has also said he intends to redraft the constitution to change Sri Lanka to a presidential system as soon as possible. Like his predecessor, Jayewardene intends to chart a foreign policy course of nonalignment, though he is expected to be less active than Mrs. Bandaranaike was in the Third World movement.

Alien Farmhands Picked Up

CASNOVIA, Mich. (AP) — Police have picked up 47 illegal aliens from Mexico on Muskegon County farms. Leon Ring, chief patrol agent for the Border Patrol office in Detroit, said 42 aliens were apprehended Wednesday at a fruit farm near Casnovia. Five others were captured Thursday in the same area, Ring reported.

He said many aliens probably were shipped off "after the word got out that we were in the area." Ring said more raids in the same area were likely to crack down upon illegal aliens. Most of those picked up were from the Santa Cruz area of Mexico and were on the way home Thursday, Ring said.

NATIONALSurplus Harvest
Forecast For Welch Niagaras

The owner of Welch Foods, National Grape Cooperative Association, is predicting a surplus of Niagara grapes for the year 1980 and intends to change the pricing formula for Niagaras in that year, according to Herb Barber, general manager of the cooperative.

Barber said that the sales of Welch's white grape products have fallen short of earlier predictions. White grape jelly, white-frozen concentrate and some sizes of white grape drink have been discontinued due to low sales volumes, and fewer Niagara grapes will be needed to handle future demands.

The cooperative's board of directors has adopted a statement of intent to change the payments for Niagara grapes starting in 1980, Barber said. Current information indicates that all of the excess Niagara tonnage may be used in replacement for 131 (California concentrate) and would receive the equivalent price.

Growers will continue to receive the same price for Niagaras as is paid for Concord until the change in 1980, Barber stated.

"Winemakers still use Niagaras for white wine," Barber said. "Aside from these new products that are being discontinued, the rest of the Niagara market is fairly strong. White grape juice sales will continue as an added market for Niagaras. Sales of Welch's white grape juice are beginning to pick up and are now 17 per cent ahead of last year."

To improve the future outlook for Niagaras the National Grape board announced that sugar solids standards for receipt of Niagaras will be put into effect next year to encourage the delivery of mature fruit. Further, Niagara growers who wish to remove Niagara acreage are authorized equal acreage Concord planting allotments following the removal.

Barber said that Michigan has 459 acres of the 2,000 acres of Niagaras planted nationwide by crop members.

As a new use for Concord grapes, Barber said that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration is testing Welch Foods' Natural Grape Color (NGC) to determine its possible status as a food dye. NGC is extracted from the color pigments of Concord grapes which after purification and concentration can be from 25 to 75 times more color intense than the original grape juice.

"The color we get from the dye is a deep red," Barber explained. "It's being used in Europe now, and we feel it is a promising substitute for some of the banned food coloring agents in the United States."

The Food and Drug Administration banned red dye no. 2 last year and is currently questioning the safety of Red dye no. 40.

Butler said that he did not know if NGC had any possibility as a dye for maraschino cherries, but it does show promise in other areas.

Labor Declines Steadily

Michigan's migrant labor population is only about one-third the size of ten years ago and still decreasing, according to Robert Kaukola, head of the southwestern Michigan district of the Michigan Department of Public Health (MDPH).

Kaukola reported that an 11 year survey by the MDPH shows that 2,610 labor camps were licensed in 1966 compared to 971 in 1976. Nearly a third of the state's migrant labor is reported in Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties, with Berrien having the largest number of licensed camps in the state. Berrien county licensed 193 migrant camps in 1976, with a housing capacity just under 6,500.

"The number of licensed camps is on the downside," Kaukola stated. "I think that there will be another decrease in licensed camps for 1977 in spite of better crops throughout most of the state. The economies of migrant labor has changed greatly over the years and farmers have had to adjust accordingly."

Kaukola said that labor costs have increased because of stricter governmental regulations on housing and the rise in minimum wage levels. Mechanization, the advent of dwarf tree varieties, and "U-Pick" operations have all contributed to the decreasing need for large labor forces, Kaukola added.

Kaukola said that the largest labor force is required for strawberry and cucumber harvest, using approximately 10 workers for every acre planted.

"I think the cost of labor is probably the biggest cause for the decline in strawberry acreage," Kaukola noted. "Even though prices have been good the last few years, many growers are still plowing up their strawberry patches and a lot are going to 'U-Pick' operations."

Decreasing numbers of licensed labor camps and the threat of government regulations were cited by Kaukola as continuing problems for the remaining strawberry growers in the state.

"Even many of the larger strawberry operations in the area rely on a substantial number of their labor finding housing elsewhere," said Kaukola. "Fewer licensed camps makes the extra housing scarce, and many people were unable to allow their housing to be used this season for fear of crew leader regulations."

Kaukola predicted that farmers in the future will rely on smaller numbers of "more dependable" help.

"Human labor will always be needed for fresh market crops," stated Kaukola. "Farmers may have to invest more money in housing facilities, but good housing can also attract good, reliable labor."

Corn Predicted
At Record Level

A record corn crop is forecast for Michigan and the nation this year and farmers are being advised to sell any stocks of corn still held over from last year.

This year's Michigan crop is estimated at 154 million bushels by the Michigan Crop Reporting Service. The previous high was set in 1975, with a harvest of 132.8 million bushels. 1977 Michigan corn acreage, however, is 140,000 above that of the 1975 record year. The corn harvest nationally is predicted at 6.3 billion bushels.

Milton Francis, head of the Berrien County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office, said that prices are predicted to be $0.40-$0.50 less this year than in 1976 for a bushel of corn.

"This year's prices are forecast to fall to between $1.70 and $1.90 a bushel," Francis said. "Last year's averaged out between $2.25 and $2.50 per bushel."

Francis said that farmers may be planting more corn rather than allowing acreage to go unused simply to compensate for increasing property taxes. James Gill, market analyst for the Illinois Farm Bureau, advised farmers to sell any corn reserves within the next few weeks.

"The corn could be processed through feeder cattle or pigs," Gill said, "or it can be held over to next year again. But because of the loss of quality and other factors I just don't think it is wise."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that as many as 1.3 billion bushels of corn could be left over after this year's harvest.

Beef Owners
Split Vote
In Berrien

Berrien county beef growers delivered a split decision on the national beef research and promotion marketing order referendum, according to Milton Francis, head of the Berrien County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office.

Francis reported that of the 28 votes cast in the county, 14 voted "yes" and 14 "no" for the referendum. Thirty-eight area cattlemen had registered to vote in the referendum held July 5-15.

The proposed assessment was a collection rate of 3/10 of one per cent on the sale of cattle sold for slaughter. The assessment would equal a tax of $1.20 on a $400 sale, and would be used for promotional purposes in the beef industry.

Francis said that nationwide a two-thirds approval is needed to pass the referendum. Francis added that it will probably be another week before the final results are made known.

Claims Continue
For Crop Losses

County ASCS offices are now processing claims on 1977 crop losses, according to Vernon L. Kretschmer, Chairman of the Michigan State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

Kretschmer reported that over 2,000 claims have been filed to date. Most of the claims were filed in counties in the central part of the State. Many farmers suffered substantial losses, but do not qualify for payments because of the extent they overplanted their farm allotments. The law only provides for payments for losses suffered below the normal production of each farmer's allotments.

In 1976 over 2,700 claims were filed with over 1,800 qualifying for payments. Payments for 1976 crop losses exceeded $1.2 million. Disaster payments are based on one-third of the farm program target price of the crop involved. For corn the disaster payment rate is 57 cents a bushel and for wheat it is 82 cents a bushel. These 1977 rates are about 10 percent higher than the 1976 rates.

Applications must be filed at local county ASCS offices as soon as crop losses are apparent. Kretschmer stated the affected acreage should not be utilized until the disaster condition and production or potential production have been determined by ASCS personnel.

High Temperatures
Affect Animals Too

The heat wave southwestern Michigan and much of the nation is experiencing is just as uncomfortable for animals as it is for humans, according to Fred Hinkley, livestock agent for the Van Buren county extension service.

"The performance of all animals is affected by excessive heat," Hinkley stated. "Hogs are probably the most susceptible to this type of weather. If you try to move them to market they will collapse from heart attacks, the same way any human would when too much strain is put on the heart. That's why hog prices skyrocket during heat waves. There is a shortage of supplies."

Hinkley said that animals will exhibit a loss of appetite and a much poorer performance while the heat continues. Hogs will lay fewer, and lower quality eggs.

cows give less milk, and beef livestock won't gain weight as rapidly as normal.

Hinkley said that most farmers are aware of the effects of extreme heat on animals, but many farmers need to be aware of the danger also.

"Horse owners can easily overwork their animals in this weather," said Hinkley. "They should be kept in the shade, and only ridden in the early morning or late evening when the temperatures are cooler. Even then, the riding should be easy, and not a strenuous workout."

Hinkley advised that all animals be kept in a shady, well ventilated area when temperatures get above 90 degrees. He added that a fresh supply of water should be kept on hand and that livestock or pets should not be overworked or overplayed.

A Tough Bean To Crack

A new navy bean variety with improved resistance to harvesting damage has resulted from cooperative breeding work by plant breeder Dr. M. W. Adams, Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station, and plant pathologist Dr. Alfred W. Sattler, USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Names Tuscola, after one of Michigan's leading dry bean growing counties, the new bean is being released primarily because of its ability to withstand mechanical impact damage better than the commonly grown Sanilac and other navy bean varieties, the researchers say. However, Tuscola has also yielded better than Sanilac in field tests.

A metal hammer attached to a spinning disk was used to hit the beans simulating a threshing cylinder.

Tuscola beans averaged 80 percent whole beans after testing at four different impact levels. Sanilac averaged 58 percent whole beans. A breeding line very sensitive to impact damage averaged only 30 percent whole beans after the test.

Tuscola has been tested in Michigan, Minnesota, and Ontario since 1968. It is slightly later maturing than Sanilac, requiring 90 to 94 days under Michigan conditions, the researchers say.

Yield results in Michigan plots averaged 2,087 pounds per acre compared to 1,941 pounds per acre for Sanilac. Plots in Ontario yielded 2,270 pounds per acre for Tuscola and 7,755 for Sanilac.

Crop Alert Initiated

An early warning system to alert farmers to new diseases of major food crops has begun in 10 upper Midwest states including Michigan, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Coordinated by USDA's Animal Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), the new system will concentrate on detecting new diseases of corn, soybeans and small grains. Under the cooperative agreement, APHIS plant disease specialists will monitor disease conditions in the host states which will provide laboratory, office and greenhouse space. States not participating in the initial system will also contribute data.

APHIS plant pathologists say that the plant disease alert will help them act quickly with control measures against foreign diseases and mutations which evolve into new races of disease organisms.

JIMMY CARTER
Hard To Cut Back

White House 'Cuts' Won't Mean Any Firings

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Carter unveiled his first reorganization plan, he declared, "We are starting off with perhaps the most difficult one of all for me."
The plan, sent to Congress just a week ago, will revamp the Executive Office of the President and the White House staff, the latter a part of the larger EOP.
"It is difficult," Carter said, "because of the closeness of myself to the people involved."
No one in Washington would pretend that it is easy to reorganize any part of the federal bureaucracy. Even the official board of tea tasters emerged with a vocal constituency when the first proposal was made, at least two administrations ago, that it be abolished.

It is well, however, that Carter spoke of EOP reorganization as "perhaps" the most difficult in a series of such plans that are promised for the months and years ahead. The qualification took some of the edge off what otherwise would have been an excursion into the realm of obvious hyperbole.
For one thing, Carter's suggestion that proximity to the people being reorganized at EOP made the task more difficult is susceptible to skeptical examination. The plain fact is that no one with close and long-standing ties to the President is being reorganized out of a job, shorn of power or even faced with significant inconvenience.

As a matter of fact, even those who hold the 232 EOP jobs that are getting the ax need not fear for their livelihood. About a third of the jobs simply are being transferred to other parts of the bureaucracy and those who hold the rest will continue to draw federal paychecks. In numerical terms, eliminated jobs will be dispensed with through normal attrition: deaths, retirements and resignations.

The same situation will apply to promised cuts in the White House staff — only more so.
Carter, who once said he would cut the White House staff by 30 per cent, announced that reorganization will see the full-time staff reduced to 351 from 485, seemingly an impressive reduction of 28 per cent.

"I think it carries out his (Carter's) commitment," said Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget.
A second glance reveals, however, that just over half of the cutback — 70 jobs out of 134 — represents a paper transaction. The 70 jobholders, who do administrative work, aren't even leaving the premises. They are being transferred from the White House staff to a new central administrative unit within the EOP.

With difficult and controversial reorganization plans yet to emerge from the Oval Office, Carter presumably wanted to get the lengthy and sure-to-be contentious process off to a flying start.
This is important, at least psychologically, because Congress has made it clear it wants to be heard during the reorganization process. Carter can propose but Congress can dispose, by disapproval of any plan by either the Senate or House within 60 days after it is unveiled.

By starting with the EOP, the President probably came as close as he could to guaranteeing an initial success.
First, Carter can argue, quite correctly, that he is making his own shop a model for others that still face the rigors of reorganization.
Second, Congress is least likely to challenge the President on the way he chooses to run his own office, just as he would shrink from trying to tell the Senate or House how to conduct their internal affairs.

U.S. Steel's Price Hike Hit By Carter

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, disappointed by a new U.S. Steel Corp. price increase, is concerned that the hike could undermine the administration's anti-inflation program, his chief economic adviser says.

"The government can't do it alone. There has to be some general restraint shown by others," Charles L. Schultz, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said of the anti-inflation effort.

Schultz, who asked reporters to his office Thursday evening, criticized U.S. Steel shortly after the nation's largest steel-maker announced price increases of 6 per cent on structural steel and 7 per cent on tin mill steel.

"The administration believes such action is clearly inconsistent with efforts to control the inflation rate," Schultz said. He said Carter had "expressed his sharp disappointment with this development."

Structural steel is used in construction, while tin mill steel is used in food and beverage cans.

Although U.S. Steel said the increase is needed to offset higher labor charges and other costs, Schultz said the steel industry has raised its prices in recent months much faster than the average increase for all American industry.

"We've got to let the public know about it," he said, when asked what the criticism would accomplish. "We have to look at it in terms of what's been happening."

If other steelmakers follow U.S. Steel's lead, he said, overall steel prices will be 12.5 per cent higher than they were in September. The latest increase is the fifth significant hike in 10 months, he added.

While the administration neither has nor wants the authority to force a price rollback, Schultz said "we couldn't be happier" if U.S. Steel decides to trim its price hikes as a result of the administration criticism.

The steel price increase and the Carter administration's criticism of it came on the same day that the government issued another unfavorable report on inflation, showing the struggle to contain rising prices has a long way to go.

The Labor Department said consumer prices rose six-tenths of 1 per cent in June, the same as in May, and were up 4.4 per cent for the first six months of the year. Prices rose only 4.8 per cent in all of 1976.

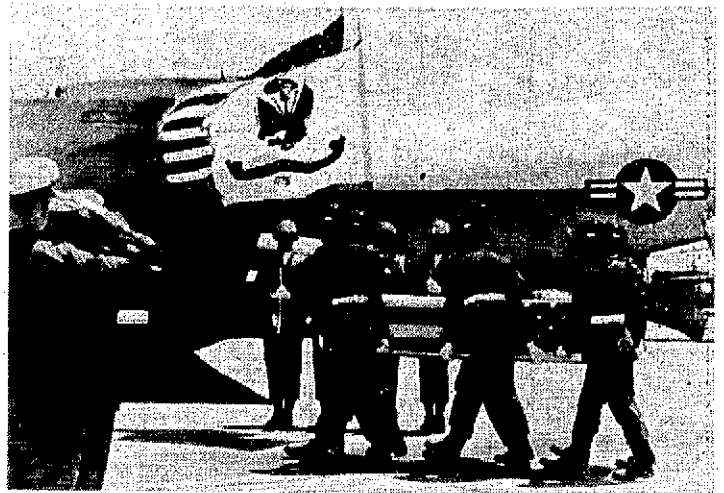

Some administration officials had indicated they expected a much better price performance in June after recent improvements in wholesale prices, including a decline of six-tenths of 1 per cent in June.

"A lot of people had unduly optimistic predictions," said Courtenay M. Slater, chief economist for the Commerce Department. She said there had been some moderation in consumer prices in recent months and predicted a continuing moderation in months ahead, but seemed to rule out any dramatic improvement.

The administration took heart from another key economic report that showed the economy grew at a healthy 6.4 per cent annual rate in the second quarter of the year, as measured by the gross national product. The same report revised upward the first quarter growth to 7.5 per cent from the 6.9 per cent reported previously.

Combined, the growth during the first six months of the year averaged about 7 per cent, well above the administration's target for over-all economic growth this year of about 6 per cent. The administration expects an easing in economic growth to a rate of about 5 per cent during the second half of the year, still a favorable figure.

Topless Truck Curb Ordered

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State police troopers have been told to crack down on truckers whose loads litter the highways and damage other vehicles.

State Police Director Gerald Hough said Thursday his forces have received numerous complaints from motorists whose cars suffered damage from gravel, stone or other material flying off trucks. The debris chips windows and paint surfaces and causes other damage.

Hough said troopers will step up their checks of trucking companies and individual truck operators who lose cargo along the roadway to see if they are breaking a recently beefed-up law requiring covered trucks.

Insurance companies in Michigan indicate that spilled cargo caused $11 million in damages to auto windows alone in 1974, according to Hough.

Truck owners and operators whose vehicles violate state laws are subject to arrest. Conviction is a misdemeanor carrying a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

The law, which took effect March 31, requires that loose cargo be fastened securely. Trucks must be either covered completely or be loaded so the contents do not touch the sides higher than six inches from the top of the sideboards.

That does not prevent them from being piled high in the middle of the truck, however.

Police do not have to see the actual spill take place to arrest a trucker.

The Automobile Club of Michigan said some truckers have disregarded the new law, and praised Hough for the increased enforcement. It urged motorists to report violations to its offices or the state police.

Judge Asks Release Of Transcript

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Dane County Judge Archie Simonson, whose remarks about rape and women's clothing touched off a recall petition drive, wants transcripts of his in-court remarks released in an effort to clear his name.

But on Thursday, the youth counselor in charge of the 15-year-old boy who Simonson sentenced to a year at home under court supervision asked another judge to withhold the transcript to protect the young rapist's rights.

"Leave well enough alone," said Louis Cooper, director of the South Madison Neighborhood Center, in his request to the neighboring Rock County court, which will decide whether Simonson can release the transcript.

The Rock County court has not indicated when it will rule.

The boy was found guilty, along with two others, of molesting a 16-year-old girl in a school stairwell. But Simonson was quoted in news reports as saying at the trial that provocative clothing and a sexually permissive atmosphere in Madison have helped spur rapes.

Heat Linked To Walkoffs

DETROIT (AP) — More than 100 workers at Chrysler Corp.'s Lynch Road assembly plant walked off the job Thursday night in an apparent protest of heat inside the plant.

Officials said the workers failed to return to their jobs after a lunch break on the afternoon shift.

Two police squad cars were sent to the scene, but officials said there were no major incidents and no arrests.

The plant has been hit by walkouts earlier this week because of the heat, which has delayed the changeover to 1978 model cars.

There were reports that workers Thursday were also protesting the firings of three coworkers, who allegedly walked off the job because of heat on Wednesday.

enough from the highway that passing traffic gets no more than a quick glance.

From the living room where Darlene Haynes waited for her son to come home today for the last time, the sound of that passing traffic is barely audible.

It is a quiet place and somehow seems to fit well the waiting patience of an Irish-English-German mother out of west Kansas whose son is a new victim of an old, old war, one that ended 25 years ago at a place called Panmunjom in a country called Korea.

Spec. 5 Robert Haynes died July 14 with two of his buddies when their Chinook helicopter strayed into North Korea air space and was shot down.

Mrs. Haynes read a telegram: "The remains of your son have been consigned..." and she let the words trail away.

"They said we'd be getting a bunch of telegrams, but I didn't expect this one," she said.

There was a note of bewilderment. It was, next to a mother's grief, perhaps her strongest emotion as she waited.

She groped for words to tell a stranger how she felt.

"It's terrible. Let me tell you it's terrible. You just feel so helpless... It all seems so unreal..."

A floor fan gently moved cooling air through the room and Mrs. Haynes looked at it without seeing, her mind elsewhere.

"I still can't believe it's real," she said quietly. "I guess it's because it happened so far away and came so unexpectedly."

A daughter-in-law, wife of Haynes' brother, brought in the mail and handed an ordinary white envelope to Mrs. Haynes.

Inside, on a plain piece of white paper, was a simple message: "Dear Mrs. Haynes and family: We are so very, very sorry about your son. Respectfully, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Styles."

The envelope was postmarked, Huntsville, Ala. "Isn't that nice?" said Mrs. Haynes. "I don't even know these people."

It was an international incident that has bewildered and troubled many. But there was no bitterness in Darlene Haynes.

"No, I'm not bitter at all, not one bit," she said. "He was happy. He was doing what he wanted to do."

That was to fly, even if he was not a pilot.

"Look at this," she said, handing over a lattered postcard. On one side is a color picture of a Chinook helicopter hovering close to the ground. The card is to Robert's brother, Steve, 19, and closes with, "I promised you I'd send some more cards. This is what I hope to be flying in a couple of months."

The year was 1967 and it was written shortly after Robert Haynes finally got into the service.

Shortly after finishing high school in Norcross, Ga., he received his draft call but failed the physical because he was too light at 110 pounds.

"He was really disappointed," said his mother. "All his buddies he had finished school with had passed and he was just turn up about not getting in, too."

State Bends Rules To Keep Projects Moving

BY SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — It may not be technically proper, but the state has started spending money the legislature hasn't appropriated. State budget officials acknowledged Thursday that they spent more than $400,000 this week already, despite failure by state lawmakers to put the finishing touches on an appropriations bill.

They plan to spend another chunk of money soon to begin converting Kincheloe Air Force Base in the Upper Peninsula into a medium-security prison. About $62,000 of the money already spent went to pay 31 state employees who otherwise would have gone without paychecks Thursday, officials said. The rest went to buy land in Grand Rapids to build a parking lot for state employees.

"The constitution says you can't spend money that's not appropriated," said one state official. "But reasonable men must sometimes agree on these things." Budget officials spent the money only after Gov. William Milliken and Democratic legislative leaders gave their approval Tuesday. The lawmakers promised that a $87.5 million bill which would legally appropriate the money now being spent will get final approval when lawmakers return this fall from summer vacations.

It's been approved by both the House and Senate but senators fell three votes short of giving it immediate effect. Without immediate effect, the money in the bill — about $38 million of it in federal funds — could not legally be spent until next spring. But the bill is what lawmakers call a "supplemental," intended to tide over state government operations until the fiscal year expires Sept. 30. Without immediate effect, it does no good. So officials, Milliken and top lawmakers have decided they'll spend what must be spent in anticipation of final approval for the bill.

Budget officials decided to start spending this week for these reasons:

—Appropriations to pay employees of the Michigan Energy Administration and one division of the Public Service Commission ran out this week.

—The state's option to buy the Grand Rapids land ran out this week.

—The need for state prison facilities is so desperate that action must be taken immediately to begin converting Kincheloe into a prison.

One budget official said more money from the bill will undoubtedly be spent later this summer, probably to meet payrolls for other state employees and to begin or continue work on other prison facilities.

Appeals Court Reverses Ruling On White Worker

CINCINNATI (AP) — A federal appeals court has reversed a case involving a complaint by a white Michigan worker who said he was fired for protesting the dismissal of a black co-worker.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Thursday reversed and remanded the appeal of Ross Leone to U.S. District Court in Detroit.

Leone and Tom Winston, as joint plaintiffs, filed a complaint against their employer, Lear-Siegler, Inc. Winston, a black, and Leone, a white, had been employed by the firm as tool and die makers from May 20, 1975, to August 19, 1975, when they both lost their jobs.

The complaint alleges that disciplinary action taken against Winston would not have been taken against white employees "similarly situated and for the same or similar conduct."

It was also alleged that disciplinary action was taken against Leone "because he protested and objected to the racially discriminatory action taken against Tom Winston."

After the corporation moved to dismiss the complaint by Leone, the lower court judge sustained the motion.

Leone and Winston sought declaratory, injunctive, monetary and other appropriate relief to redress the deprivation of their rights and privileges guaranteed by Sec. 1981, Title 42 of the U.S. Constitution.

The appellate court disagreed with the lower court judge's ruling that Section 1981 "does not apply to the language by white persons for discrimination."

The panel of judges wrote: "The question then is whether 42 U.S.C. Section 1981 provides a cause of action to a white party for protesting against a Private Employer who allegedly fired the white party for protesting an asserted racially motivated firing of a non-white party."

The judges added, "While the appellant was not fired because of his race, it was a racial situation in which he became involved that resulted in his discharge from his employment."

Disaster Label Is Asked For Macomb County

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has asked the Small Business Administration to declare Macomb County a disaster area after a tornado and high winds two weeks ago.

Estimates put the damage at more than $1 million. The tornado struck a trailer park and other homes in the New Haven area.

Milliken told the SBA that 68 mobile homes were damaged, 13 completely destroyed and 35 other residences damaged.

Milliken asked SBA Regional Director Arthur Glick to issue the declaration so victims can apply for low-interest loans.

A Welcome Hand

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Kathryn Garrett of Hernando walked away from the Jackson airport protecting the hand that welcomed President Carter. "I'm not ever going to wash it," the grandmotherly-looking woman announced as she moved along with the rain-soaked crowd Thursday afternoon toward an estimated 8,000 waiting cars. The crowd, some who had waited more than three hours to see the President, cheered as Air Force One touched down and a hand struck up the tune, "Sweet Georgia Brown." Country humorist Jerry Clower entertained the crowd before Carter's arrival, which was 50 minutes behind schedule. A tired woman holding a sleeping baby said: "I wanted to see the President. I wanted my baby to see the President. It was worth it."

Toxins Go Back To Manufacturer

STANTON, Mich. (AP) — Two tanks filled with 7,500 gallons of poison have been dumped and their toxic ingredients trucked back to the Montague firm that made them.

Department of Natural Resources officials said Thursday that the chemical, C-56, was removed as ordered by a Montcalm County Circuit Court judge.

The transfer was carried out by Approved Industrial Removal, Inc., of Grand Rapids, which buried the tanks last year in the Central Sanitary Landfill.

As ordered, state police escorted the three vehicles on the 60-mile trip to the Hooker Chemical Co. plant.

Approved Industrial Removal pumped most of the chemical into a tanker truck, then used a crane to haul the tanks out of the ground and place them on flat bed trucks.

The operators of the landfill prevented reporters from observing the operation up close.

The move took more than four hours longer than anticipated, according to August Bradley, supervisor of Pierson Township, where the landfill is located. There was some trouble removing one of the tanks because crews were unable to pump out all the chemical, he said. When it was lifted with a crane, the liquid sloshed from one side to the other, making the load difficult to manage.

Hooker stopped making C-56, an ingredient of Kepone, Mirex and Aldrin, in February. Some of those pesticides are now banned for use in the United States.

In a suit that sought the removal, state officials claimed a concentration of 7.2 parts per million of C-56 killed every one of a test batch of rabbits within an hour.

That suit also claimed "in sufficient amounts, C-56 literally dissolves internal human organs."

Approved Industrial said it buried the waste because an industrial incinerator was closed at the time. So far, there has been no indication how Hooker plans to dispose of the waste.

Niles Resident $13,000 Winner!

DETROIT — David Freeze of Niles won $13,000 last night in the state lottery's weekly Michigan drawing here. Freeze, 30, of 1516 Bell road, works at National Standard Co. in Niles, is married and has three children. His wife Linda said this morning that the couple was planning to buy a house and take a trip to Switzerland with their winnings, but now that they have the money in their hands, may just bank it for a while.

She said she is happy with the prize but her husband was disappointed that he didn't win the $112,000 top prize. That was won by Kim Olney, 18, a center on the Jackson Northwest high school football team, according to Associated Press. According to the wire service, other winners were Gloria Graves, 49, Detroit, who won $24,000; Melvin Potter, 35, Detroit, $5,000; Louis Reehls, 30, Jackson, $5,000; and Winning Ticket Group Six, a lottery ticket club with 267 members, $5,000.

Stockman Sees A 'Step Forward'

Congressman Dave Stockman (R-St. Joseph) said today appointment of Leon Jaworski to investigate alleged influence buying of members of Congress is "a considerable step forward."

Stockman praised Jaworski as a man of "integrity and competence," but Stockman also had reservations on the manner in which Jaworski was appointed as special prosecutor to investigate the alleged influence buying by the South Korean government.

The House Ethics committees announced Jaworski's appointment yesterday, Stockman said he believes the appointment officially was made by committee Chairman John Flynn (D-Georgia) but only after pressure by House Speaker Thomas O'Neill (D-Mass.).

The appointment takes the steam out of a resolution sponsored by Stockman calling for appointment of a special prosecutor. The resolution was introduced Wednesday.

The Stockman-supported resolution came on the heels of charges by special counsel to the House Ethics committee, Philip Lacovara, that the committee has been dragging its feet. Lacovara charged that despite the seriousness of the investigation, the committee has not met in more than a month.

"The idea that Congress investigate itself has been ludicrous from the beginning," Stockman said. "Watergate showed us very clearly what happens or rather doesn't happen when one branch of the government investigates itself."

In January of this year, Stockman co-sponsored legislation to establish an independent investigation of the Korean scandal. "I felt at the time, as I do now that the allegations of influence-buying are too pervasive to be handled within the Congress itself. Recent reports indicate that as many as 115 former and present members of Congress may have received money, gifts or favors from the government of South Korea. This (resolution) is one more step to ensure that there is a thorough but swift investigation of the Korean situation and that the investigation is totally independent."

Stockman said the credibility of Congress in the eyes of the American people has been strained for a long time. "Asking them to believe that Congress will conduct a swift and objective investigation into an ethical matter that might include as many as 25 per cent of its own members is an insult," he concluded. "It took a special prosecutor to dig through the White House Watergate cover-up; more and more it looks like only another special prosecutor will prevent another cover-up at this end of Pennsylvania avenue."

Prostitutes Not 'Nuisance'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A business cannot be shut down as a public nuisance just because prostitutes solicit there, the state Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday. On a 2-1 vote, the court ruled that only houses of prostitution can be closed under the state "nuisance abatement" law. It overturned a ruling by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Charles Farmer, who denied a motion to dismiss a suit filed by the Wayne County prosecutor. The suit sought to close down the Willis Show Bar in Detroit. Police testified they had made 237 arrests at the bar for accosting and soliciting for prostitution, although no acts of sexual intercourse were alleged to have taken place there. The owners of the bar asked Farmer to dismiss the suit. The Court of Appeals said he should have, because the nuisance law only applies to houses of prostitution.

FBI Men Grab Two

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — Two persons wanted for questioning in the 1976 murder of an Ann Arbor doctor have been arrested in Sacramento County, Calif., according to Southfield police and the FBI. Officials said Gordon Wingard and Brenda Oliver were arrested Thursday night by FBI agents and Sacramento County deputies. They are wanted for questioning in the July 17, 1976, murder of Dr. Cynthia Miller. Both persons were the subject of federal fugitive flight warrants in the death. Dr. Miller, 29, was found shot to death in her car on Interstate 68 in Southfield. She had worked at Southern Michigan Prison in Jackson and at the time of her death was medical director of the Detroit House of Corrections.

Execution Deadline Passes

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A threatened "day of systematic execution" for 50 Jesuit priests in El Salvador has passed without incident, but police and the army kept up their patrols to guard against possible attacks. Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero, president of this tiny Central American republic, personally reviewed security precautions Thursday at the Basilica of Guadalupe, in downtown San Salvador. A right-wing extremist organization calling itself the White Warriors Union last month threatened to kill the Jesuits if they did not leave the country by July 21. The Union claims the Jesuits are spreading Communist propaganda.

Stub Vacated At Stevensville

The Stevensville village council last night voted to abandon the east end of Phillips drive and hold a public hearing on the vacation Aug. 25 at 8 p.m.

Council action came on request of Alvin Deckert as part of his proposal to build three duplex apartments on three lots on Karen court.

Phillips drive runs along the southern edge of one of the lots. The stretch is 107 to 130 feet long.

Deckert has also asked the council to grant variances in the lot sizes to permit the project.

A public hearing on the request for variances in the lot sizes is also scheduled for Aug. 25.

Clerk Bernice Schoenfelder said the property of Phillips drive, when the vacation is final, would revert to properties on either side. Indiana and Michigan Electric Co. owns the land on one side of the drive which deadends at the railroad tracks.

As part of the vacation, Deckert agreed to keep a drain along the property open.

In other areas, Arthur Kasewurm, village president, read a letter of agreement from Lincoln township that the township and the village would share the cost of constructing a 330 foot drain east of Ida Dehring's property line at 5485 St. Joseph avenue to Hickory Creek. The agreement stated that, upon completion, the county would be petitioned to take over the drain as part of its Collins-Lake drain district. The drain project is expected to cost approximately $3,000.

The council asked Rudy Brundel, builder of the DeMorrow Circle development, to present a report at the next month's meeting as to when the drains, curbs, and street lights will meet village specifications.

The council tabled the request for a fence variance from Duane Brasso, 5804 Ridge road, who wants to construct an eight-foot-high fence until he is informed of the correct procedure of depositing $100 to hold a public hearing.

The clerk was requested to contact the owners of the Welcome Inn and the Red Coach Inn and ask them to close the passageway between the two businesses.

Fred Albrecht, building inspector, proposed adopting a mineral removal ordinance to deal with removal, depositing, or relocating soil within the village. The council took no action until further study can be made of the suggested ordinance.

The council approved Garrison Harris' bid to construct a 200-foot sewer on Ridge road south to Red Arrow for $750. The council tabled Kevin Green's, Superintendent of Public Works, request to do patch work on John Beers, Kimble and Fairview.

Ervin Fechner, treasurer, said he would be collecting taxes at village hall July 25, Aug. 8 and Aug. 22 and Sept. 12, from 5:30 p.m. until 7 p.m., on each day.

Deadline for paying summer (village) taxes is Sept. 15.

Bad News For School Districts

based upon that opinion, the cities would have grounds for fighting a higher school tax than the townships are assessed.

Robert Hurnberger, director of departmental services for the State Department of Education, said split millage is common throughout Michigan for school districts that cross county lines and have cities in them. He said he had no idea of the number of such districts, however, nor the amounts of money they collect from the extra mill of tax.

Three school districts in Berrien county are "split millage districts" and have been given an extra mill of school tax.

Coloma, Watervliet and Niles school districts are authorized to levy 9.376 mills of school tax, whereas other districts situated wholly within the county were authorized only 8.376 mills by the allocation board.

Coloma and Watervliet districts extend across the county line into Van Buren county. Niles district crosses into Cass county. Property owners in the Van Buren and Cass portions of these districts must also pay this extra mill.

Combined, the three split millage districts in Berrien county are due to collect about $250,000 from this extra mill this year.

Smith-Haven school district officials have indicated the tribunal's ruling in their case will cost the district about $70,000 in lost tax revenue and about another $80,000 in lost state aid.

Richard Erickson, chief clerk of the State Tax Tribunal, said as far as he knows the tribunal's ruling will not automatically apply to all districts that are levying split millage. He said he thought probably someone within each of the districts concerned would have to appeal the extra mill question to the tribunal to win relief for that district.

On the rulings in the Bay City, Smith Haven and Gobles cases may be sufficient notice to the various tax allocation boards across the state to discontinue awarding split millage.

Death Ruling

L'ANSE, Mich. (AP) — The death of a 13-year-old Mattson boy has been tentatively ruled an accident, according to state police. Robert Lassi died Wednesday when a 4-inch hunting knife entered his neck after he tripped and fell while playing with two companions, troopers said.

HARTFORD — Kids and senior citizens will get special rates on Wednesday, July 27, and senior citizens and veterans will get special rates on Thursday, July 28, at the Van Buren county youth fair. On Wednesday, according to fair officials, senior citizens will be admitted to the grounds free of charge until 6 p.m., and kids will be able to enjoy midway rides at reduced prices, until 6 p.m. Thursday, senior citizens and veterans will have free admission to the grounds until 6 p.m., fair officials said.

VFW Will Start Hall

DECATUR — Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars post here will break ground for construction of a new VFW hall at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, according to a spokesman for the post.

The post is going to be built on a five-acre parcel off Territorial road just outside the village limits, the spokesman said.

For the last eight years, Castor has been co-manager of the Van Buren Youth fair, and is one of about 100 unpaid volunteers who donate their time to keep things running smoothly.

"I still have a lot of faith in our young people, and I figure if I've helped just one kid it's all worth it," he said.

Castor estimated that between 3,000 and 4,000 youngsters, from such groups as the Boy Scouts, 4-H, and Future Farmers of America, will be participating in the 19th annual edition of the fair which gets underway this weekend. Formal opening day is Sunday, July 24. The fair ends July 30.

Attendance, which dipped to 44,960 last year because of rain two days, should climb back to around 50,000, Castor said.

All proceeds from the fair are used for prizes, operating expenses, or capital improvements on the fairgrounds, which are located on CR-481 at Red Arrow highway, east of Hartford.

A pre-formal opening function comes Saturday at 9 a.m. with entry and judging of non-animal exhibits. A horse show is scheduled for all day Sunday, with a steer carcass show and education program starting at noon.

Here's a rundown of next week's scheduled activities:

Monday, July 25 — Entries of animal exhibits will be accepted through out the day, with the carnival and midway opening late in the afternoon. Opening ceremonies are scheduled for 6 p.m., with the state lightweight horse pulling championship at 7 p.m.

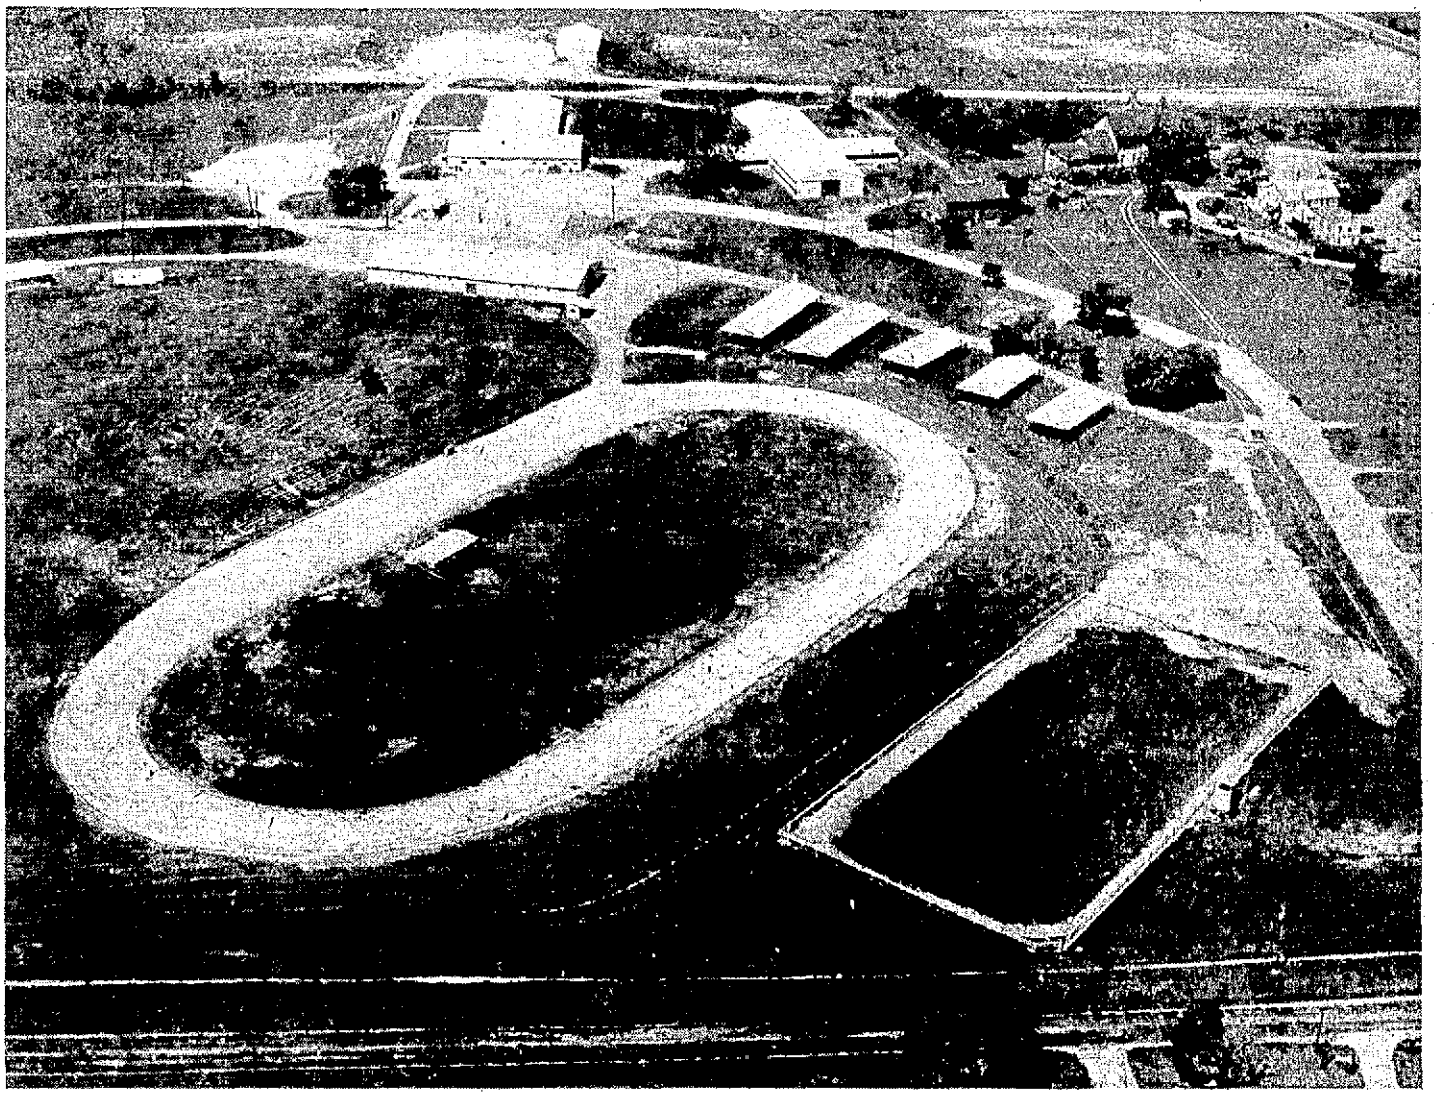

Tuesday, July 27 — Beef judging starts at 9 a.m., the heavyweight horse pulling contest at 1 p.m., and shows by the Sunshine Express, a group of young singers, at 7 and 9 p.m.

Wednesday, July 27 — Sheep judging and an English horse and pony show start at 9 a.m. There will be bicycle races at 10 a.m., swine judging at 1 p.m., a tractor pull at 4 p.m., a children's pet parade at 6 p.m., and another tractor pull at 7 p.m.

Thursday, July 28 — The day's big event is the annual youth livestock auction, scheduled for 6 p.m. Other events include a day-long Western horse show, dairy and rabbit judging at 9 a.m.; pony pulling contests at 1 and 2 p.m.; and a performance by Dan Flegner's Hurricane Hell Drivers auto thrill show at 8 p.m.

Friday, July 29 — Country-western singer Crystal Gale will perform at 7 and 9 p.m. There will also be a day-long pony show and dog obedience show at 1 p.m.

Saturday, July 30 — A fun horse show and showmanship sweepstakes judging are scheduled for the morning. There will be draft horse pulling at 1 p.m. and a tug-of-war at 4 p.m. The fair concludes with a demolition derby at 8 p.m.

TRACK IMPROVED: Circular horse track at Van Buren youth fairgrounds has been built up with addition of about one foot of clay, according to M.J. Conklin, fair board vice president. Conklin said surface will allow better stability for tractor pulling contest. Youth fair opens July 24 this year and runs through July 30. Horse showing ring is to right of track in photo. Horse shelters are located at circular

Cass Library 'Phase 2' Bid $602,545

CASSOPOLIS — The Cass county board of commissioners last night awarded the contract for the second and final phase of construction for the new county library to Pearson Construction of Benton Harbor.

The firm's bid of $602,545 was the lowest of three bids. Pearson also had a $140,000 contract for the first phase of construction.

The 18,000 square foot library is located on a 22-acre parcel just off M-62 north of Cass-

Library construction is being paid for by an $872,000 federal public works grant the county received earlier this year.

Completion of construction is scheduled for July next year.

In other areas last night, the board tabled for further discussion a proposal that the county parks and recreation board be abolished.

Commissioner Donald Martin of Howard township said the work of the 10-member board could be taken over by the road commission which has the equipment and personnel to handle county park maintenance.

County officials said the road commission has agreed to take the job but would like to retain the parks board as an advisory body. Also last night, the board awarded a $10,470 contract to R.K. Porter Construction of Greenville, Mich., for general remodeling repairs of the jail, and voted to allocate $1,550 to the county Youth Service bureau for office printing and telephone expenses.

Lawrence Board Okays Health Courses Upgrade

LAWRENCE — The Lawrence school board last night voted to upgrade its health education for all grades.

The board action came after a citizens' group, the Lawrence Parents' Group, had asked the board for more emphasis on health-nutrition education, particularly at the elementary level.

Among classes to be instituted are a daily or weekly health education class for grades K-6; a nine-week unit of health, nutrition and social adjustment for grade 7; general health classes for other grades; and expanded courses in social and emotional adjustment, family roles, human sexuality, decision making and nutrition.

In other areas last night, the board voted to require nine of 11 teachers it would have had to lay off had not voters approved a 2.5-mill property tax increase in June, and to restore classes a millage failure would have eliminated.

Supt. Richard Stoll said that with curriculum and scheduling changes made due to declining enrollment, two teaching slots, a first grade teacher and shop teacher, will not be filled in the coming year. That will reduce the faculty from 43 to 41, Stoll said.

The board also voted to hire back three teacher aides, added a fourth one to the staff and also rehired a custodian.

It also restored band and sports program that had been slated to be cut had not the millage, and the $86,000 in state and local funds it will raise, not been approved.

The board also voted to buy, for $900, a new set of bleachers for the visitors' side of the football field; voted to lease from R.A. Imas, Inc., Paw Paw, a 1977 Dodge Aspen at $80 monthly for the superintendent; and moved its meeting place, beginning with the Aug. 11 meeting, from the conference room in the superintendent's office to the high school library.

Will Flush Hydrants In Coloma

COLOMA — Fire hydrants in Coloma city will be flushed by the city's public works department on Monday and Tuesday, July 25-26, according to Mrs. Patricia Hweley, city clerk. The hydrants will be flushed between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m., on both days.

Lifeguard Revives Victim

By TOM RENNEN
SOUTH HAVEN Correspondent
SOUTH HAVEN — A beach lifeguard was credited by city police here with reviving an apparent heart attack victim at the city's south beach yesterday afternoon.

Police said lifeguard Douglas Dempster administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Russell Gould, 70, of Ada, until ambulance attendants arrived. Gould was reported in serious condition today in the intensive care unit at South Haven Community hospital.

Dempster, 17, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Dempster, of South Haven. Dr. Dempster is president of the South Haven school board.

According to police, Gould and his son, Keith, were in a 14-foot boat on Lake Michigan near the piers. Keith Gould beached the boat on the south beach and Dempster came to the elder Gould's aid.

Jury Gives White Woman $500,000

DETROIT (AP) — A biracial Wayne County Circuit Court jury has awarded $500,000 to a 38-year-old woman who claimed she was fired from her city job because she was white. Janice Gillispie of Mount Clemens, a former secretary-bookkeeper with the Detroit Board of Tenant Affairs, said she was hired for the job in 1970 by the board, which then had 14 black and two white members. A lawyer for the firm that represented her said the board hired a coordinator in 1972 who urged that Mrs. Gillispie be fired. The lawyer, Charles Lampert, said testimony showed the board in April 1972 held a secret meeting during which some board members said Mrs. Gillispie should be fired because she was white.

Mrs. Gillispie was represented by Gary Levitt, Lampert's partner. Board chairman Lonzo Griffin, who is black, tried to stop the firing, but the board fired her in November 1972, according to the attorney. Mrs. Gillispie was replaced by a black woman. Mrs. Gillispie's suit claimed violation of the Michigan Fair Employment Practices Act, which forbids racial discrimination. The jury for the one-week trial was made up of three whites and three blacks.

Royals Rip Tigers; Cut Gap To 2 Games

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Royals, seeking another division title, keep closing in on first place in the American League West. The expansion Seattle Mariners, hopeful of finishing out of the cellar, are all the way up to sixth and wouldn't mind staying there.

The Royals sliced another half-game off the lead of the idle Chicago White Sox Thursday night with an 8-1 rout of the Detroit Tigers and trail the division leaders by just two games. Meanwhile, the Mariners edged Oakland 4-3 and dropped the A's into the basement, one-half game behind Seattle.

"It's easy to get someplace, but it's tougher to stay there," said Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson, whose Mariners have been in last place almost steadily since the start of the season. "It's kind of like getting to the major leagues. A lot of players get there, but not that many stick around."

Al Cowens had four hits and drove in five runs in Kansas City's triumph while Paul Splittorff fired a four-hitter for his third complete game in 22 starts. The victory was the seventh in a row for the Royals,

Elsewhere, the Boston Red Sox split a doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians, winning the opener 11-4 but losing the nightcap 8-2; the New York Yankees split with the Milwaukee Brewers, winning 7-0 and losing 5-4 in 10 innings, and the Minnesota Twins nipped the California Angels 3-2. Baltimore, Texas and Toronto also had the night off.

Ruppert Jones and Julie Cruz drove in two runs apiece for Seattle while Glenn Abbott defeated his former Oakland teammates for the third time in four decisions. Abbott lost a shutout bid in the seventh when Wayne Gross hit a two-run homer. Mitchell Page homered in the ninth for Oakland's final run.

However, Jones ripped his 18th homer to get the Mariners started in the second inning and his sacrifice fly in the third made it 2-0. Cruz delivered the other two runs with singles in the fifth and sixth.

Home runs by Andre Thornton, John Lowenstein and Bruce Bochte highlighted the Indians' victory while Butch Hobson slammered a three-run homer for his second hit in Boston's nine-run seventh inning that decided the opener.

Jim Bibby was clipped for Jim Rice's 24th homer but still won the nightcap with help from Jim Kern. Larvell Blanks' two-run homer off Luis Tiant gave the Indians a 3-2 lead in the seventh inning of the opener but a sinistral George Scott touched off the Red Sox' nine-run explosion in the bottom of the inning. Tiant went seven innings and fanned eight, including Rico Carty in the fourth for the veteran hurler's 2,000th career strikeout.

The Brewers' three outs away from being shut out in both ends of the doubleheader, rallied with four runs in the ninth inning of the nightcap and then won it in the 10th on rookie Dick Davis' two-out bloop single. The Yankees took the opener as Catfish Hunter fired a five-hitter for his first shutout of the season and Graig Nettles hit a three-run homer.

Cecil Cooper, who ignited the Brewers' four-run rally with a leadoff homer in the ninth against Ed Figueroa, led off the 10th with a single off Dick Tidrow, his fourth hit of the game. One out later, he stole second when catcher Fran

Another rookie, pitcher Sam Hinds, kept the Brewers in the game after they fell behind 4-1 in the first inning by hurling 71-3 scoreless innings, allowing just two singles.

Bobby Bonds homered off Dave Goltz as the Angels scored twice in the top of the first but Lynn Bostock tied it against Nolan Ryan with a two-run triple in the bottom of the first and scored on Larry Hulse's two-out hit single.

Break Was Proper Therapy For Reuss

Notches 100th Career Win

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

For three days during the All-Star break, Jerry Reuss heard crickets chirp and the wind blow through the trees in a sleepy New England retreat.

Thursday night, he heard the crack of Al Oliver's bat and the whiff of his pitches blowing by.

Both kinds of noises were significant to the Pittsburgh Pirate left-hander. The first provided needed therapy and the second a needed victory, as the Pirates beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-2.

"I stuck my feet in the Atlantic Ocean and washed away the first half of the season," said Reuss, talking about his dismal 4-10 record before Tuesday night's All-Star Game. "It seemed the farthest thing from my mind was pitching."

"I slept late, sat on the porch, heard the crickets chirp. These are things I don't hear during the baseball season."

Reuss allowed but six hits in one of his strongest performances of the season and had plenty of help from his teammates. The Pirates defense contributed three double plays and Oliver drove in a pair of runs.

Reuss also had some assistance from the fans in notching his 100th career victory. The Pirates broke open the game with three runs in the fifth, courtesy of a fan's umbrella.

Leadoff batter Frank Traversa hit a foul popup and Cincinnati first baseman Dan Driessen had a chance to catch it near the railing but the ball struck a bright blue umbrella and eluded him.

The Reds briefly argued that it was fan interference, but first base umpire Paul Pryor said the ball was in the stands when it hit the umbrella. After that incident, Traversa tripled to start the three-run rally.

In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the San Francisco Giants 8-6; the Chicago Cubs edged the Atlanta Braves 4-3 in 12 innings; the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Houston Astros 4-0; the Montreal Expos turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-0 and the San Diego Padres nipped the New York Mets 3-2 in 10 innings.

Pinch-hitter Jerry Martin's bases-loaded triple capped an eight-run sixth inning that carried Philadelphia over San Francisco.

The Giants had taken a 6-0 lead off winner Jim Lonborg, 4-3, on a grand slam homer by Gary Thomeason in the third and a two-run homer by Marc Hill in the fifth.

But then the Phillies sent 13 batters to the plate in the sixth, collecting six hits and four walks to take the lead.

Kelth Hernandez socked a home run and Gary Templeton tripled and scored two runs, leading St. Louis over Houston behind Bob Forsch's three-hitter. The Cardinals made the most of four hits off Houston right-hander J.R. Richard, 9-7, while notching only their fifth triumph in 17 games.

Hernandez' eighth homer of the year came off Richard with two out in the second inning, giving St. Louis a 1-0 advantage. Templeton singled and eventually scored on Ted Simmons' grounder in the fourth and the Cardinals added two insurance runs in the sixth on Jerry Mumphrey's single, Templeton's triple and another Simmons grounder.

Forsch struck out two and walked five en route to his fourth straight victory.

Steve Rogers fired a four-hitter and Tony Perez drove in three runs as Montreal blanked Los Angeles. Rogers, 10-8, recorded his fourth shutout of the season, tying him with Cincinnati's Tom Seaver for the league lead.

Steve Garvey's second-inning single, a single in the seventh by Reggie Smith and base hits by Johnny Oates and Bill Russell in the ninth were the only safeties off the Montreal right-hander. Rick Rhoden, 10-7, lost his fourth game in a row for the Dodgers.

George Hendrick's bases-loaded single off Skip Lockwood in the 10th inning lifted San Diego over New York. With one out, singles by Bill Abner and Mike Iye and an intentional walk to Dave Winfield loaded the bases to set the stage for Hendrick's decisive hit.

San Diego reliever Rollie Fingers, 7-4, gained the victory. The Mets, who outlit the Padres 13-7, missed a big opportunity in the 10th when Lee Mazzilli struck out with runners on second and third and Bruce Boesch later fanned with the bases loaded.

Leader Stacy Likes 'Cow Pasture'

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — The Hazeltine National Golf Club was dubbed a "cow pasture" several years ago during the U.S. Men's Open, but their female counterparts say it's a rather nice place to play.

"It's really a nice course," said Hollis Stacy after her opening-day 70 which stood up for the first-round lead in the 1977 U.S. Women's Open Golf Tournament.

"I didn't see any cows out there," continued Miss Stacy, the lone competitor to break par Thursday. "I came here thinking this place would be wide open and flat, but it's rolling and tight."

Jan Stephenson, who joined Jane Blalock, Joyce Kazmierski and Amy Alcott in a four-way tie for second at 72, described the 6,313-yard course as "tough, but fair."

Miss Stacy dipped below par with a birdie on No. 11, which was set up by a beautiful wedge shot that died six feet from the hole, and a birdie on 13 preceded five consecutive pars as she grabbed a two-stroke advantage.

Miss Stacy, playing in her eighth Open, appears to be hitting her stride on the LPGA tour. The 23-year-old brunette posted her first tournament victory two months ago winning the Lady Tara Classic at Atlanta and she is 10th in the LPGA winnings list with nearly $35,000 in earnings this season.

Miss Kazmierski appeared enroute to a share of the lead, but suffered a double-bogey 5 on the 190-yard, par-3 18th hole.

Gaines Facing Surgery Again

ROCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Lions running back Lawrence Gaines faced another knee operation today, as the rest of the National Football League team worked out in training camp.

The 23-year-old, 240-pound fullback's rookie year was one of the few bright spots in the Lions' 6-8 season last year. Gaines rushed for 659 yards and caught 23 passes. He finished behind only Dexter Bussey in team rushing statistics.

Gaines underwent surgery in February for damaged cartilage in his left knee. A team spokesman said Thursday the knee has since sustained further damage. Dr. Edwin Guise was to operate on Gaines at Ford Hospital.

"We hope Larry will be ready to play again in time for the regular season opener against the Chicago Bears Sept. 18," Lions' Coach Tom Hudson said.

The Gaines injury is the latest in a long series of knee problems that have plagued the Lions the past two years. Seven front line players had knee operations in 1975 and 10 more in 1976.

The Lions also announced just before the veterans checked in to camp Thursday that they had asked for waivers on rookie quarterback Steve Matheson of Florida, their ninth draft pick.

Seventy players are attending the training camp at Oakland University.

IZZY DiMaggio, the St. Joseph township manager, carded his first hole-in-one Thursday in the Babe's League at Lake Michigan Golf Hills. His ace came on the 127-yard, par three No. 3 hole while using an eight iron. He was playing with Bud Dudas, Dan L. Flaugh and Vince Faraone.

Jackson Parallels Robinson As Object Of Hate

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't easy being Reggie Jackson. Good looking, intelligent, articulate and rich, Jackson should have the key to this city. Instead he is being locked out. The fans love him, his teammates don't understand him and his manager wants to punch him.

Insulted at home games and taunted on the road, he is a man without a city. As the object of hate wherever he goes, the parallel with Jackie Robinson 30 years ago seems valid.

Robinson was not accepted by many players and fans because he was the first black. In some circles, color has a bearing on why Jackson's fan club does not need a big room for its meetings. But for the average fan who looks at statistics rather than skin, the criticism goes deeper. Jackson is not playing or acting like a $2.9 million player. It is that simple.

"Nine out of 10 guys would love his statistics," said Sal Bando of Milwaukee, Jackson's friend dating back to their championship days in Oakland. "I wouldn't sell him short. With all the pressure he's under, I think he's having an outstanding year."

Bando, a free agent, signed in mellow Milwaukee, the center of middle America. Expectations run lower there, and Bando, who signed a $1.4 million contract for five years, says he has not been booed at home—even though he has had his troubles at the plate.

Jackson, batting .286 with 16 home runs, 50 runs batted in and a team-leading nine game-winning hits, was the only Yankee batted in Thursday night's doubleheader with the Brewers. He has now come to accept negativism from the fans.

The low point may have come Tuesday night. Banned in his own ballpark in the All-Star Game, Jackson tried winning over the fans—as he often does—by signing autographs late into the night. Weary and mentally drained, Jackson excused himself from the autograph session.

Jackson, who was with his parents and girl friend, then was subjected to a stream of profanities from some of the kids. Jackson couldn't take it anymore. He chased one 13-year-old, but never caught him, he said.

The teen-ager claimed he was roughed up by Jackson, a charge that has been refuted by several eyewitnesses. A good deed by Jackson had turned into another nightmare.

But Jackson hasn't been entirely blameless. In his first season with the American League champions, Jackson was quoted in Sports magazine as saying only he could be the team leader, and Thurman Munson, last year's Most Valuable Player in the AL, and the team captain.

"The Munson article was out of bounds," Jackson now admits. "Everything else I have done, I would do the same."

That apparently includes the time he hit a home run and refused to shake his teammates' hands. And last month, Yankees Manager Billy Martin and Jackson had words, then almost got into a fight during a nationally televised game in Boston.

LEE TREVINO
Tee Eater Leads

Hot Putting Gives Trevino Open Lead

OAKVILLE, Ont. (AP) — Lee Trevino was the first to predict that his first-round lead in the $225,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship would not stand up.

"It's like my little boy said," Trevino quoted. "There's two things that won't last: a dog that chases cars and a pro that misses greens."

Trevino missed more than his share of greens Thursday, but he saved things with what he called "the best putting round I've ever had."

"In all the years I've played golf, and I've played golf for a lot of years in a lot of tournaments, that's the best putting round I've ever had."

"I didn't shoot 67. I putted 67. From where I hit the ball, I should have had about a 72. And it would have been a good 72, not an easy one.

"I've got to start hitting the ball better if I hope to do anything."

Trevino, trying to rebuild his game following major back surgery last winter, one-putted 11 times and once holed a 45-footer to save par on his way to the five-under-par effort that put him one stroke in front of nine players tied at 68.

Heading that group was Jack Nicklaus, designer of the tough, hilly, leg-straining 7,090-yard Glen Abbey Golf Club course that is being played for the first time and will be a permanent site for this national championship.

Nicklaus, who has yet to win the Canadian title, shared the

No. 2 spot with Bruce Lietzke and Tom Purtzer, each of whom had two eagles on his back nine. George Archer, Tom Kite, Mike Morley, George Cade, Jimmy Wittenberg and rookie Jeff Mitchell.

Tom Weiskopf, winner of two of the last four Canadian national titles, was at 69, Al Geiberger at 70 and defending champion Jerry Pate at 71.

In a large group at 72 were Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Ray Floyd. Ben Crenshaw blew to an 80.

Trevino, whose rags-to-riches saga includes five major championships and a blitz of the American, British and Canadian national titles in 1971, has had to restructure his game following the surgery. And he hasn't won in more than a year.

TONY YONTO

Yonto New Gael Coach

GALLEN — Tony Yonto, the son of Notre Dame defensive line coach Joe Yonto, is Galien's new head football coach.

Yonto, 24, who will marry Kathy McAllister of Pittsburgh a week from tomorrow, plans to move to Galien after his honeymoon and go to work on the Galien football program.

Yonto, who is replacing Jerry Hess, faces a rebuilding task at Galien. The Gaels shared last place in the Red Arrow Conference last fall with an overall 1-8 record.

Fans will have a chance to meet Yonto at a Meet The Coach Night at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 27, in the high school band room.

"My father educated me in the game and brought me up to be a coach," declares Yonto. "I'm a promoter, not a demoter. I'm out to approach as many students as possible. I hope to bring back the interest and enthusiasm in Galien football."

"Developing individual personalities and sportsmanship is a means to an end since football is only a game. My goal is to have a very competitive team and have players and fans enjoy the game because it is a game."

Yonto attended South Bend St. Joseph high school, where he participated in football, track and wrestling. He then went on to Notre Dame, where he was in boxing and weightlifting two years each.

Catching experience includes the Notre Dame summer football camp, serving as a graduate assistant for 9-0 Milton (Wis.) College and being an assistant coach in football (5-4 record), basketball (21-0 record) and baseball (16-11) at St. Edward's high school in Elgin, Ill.

DETROIT (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych is scheduled to test his ailing shoulder with some light throwing Monday.

Detroit Tiger Manager Ralph Houk said he doesn't have any rehabilitation program for his star pitcher yet. However, he said, doctors think Fidrych's sore shoulder "is a little better."

"They seem to think it's an inflammation of a small muscle in the shoulder area," Houk said.

He said he would not consider using Fidrych as a reliever for a brief test.

Milt Wilcox will become Detroit's No. 5 starter behind Dave Rozema, Fernando Arroyo, Dave Roberts and Bob Sykes.

"I hate to take Wilcox and make him a starter, but that's my best bet," Houk conceded.

Ron Loftho's 13-game hitting streak ended Thursday. He went 0-for-4.

Outfielder Tim Corcoran, optioned to Detroit's Evansville farm club July 10 when Bob Adams was brought up, was recalled Thursday. He replaces catcher Bruce Kinn, who was optioned Monday to Baltimore's Rochester farm team — although he is still Tiger property.

Corcoran was 5-for-25 at the plate in eight games during his brief stay with the Triplets.

DECISION MAKING: Berrien sheriff's deputies, state highway department officials and members of William Billions family confer after deputies said Billions refused to leave home despite eviction order. Officers waited until last night and quietly removed Billions without injuries. Group includes Undersheriff Edward Sandera (hand on chin in center), and Billions' two brothers, Louis (with hat on), and Anastasios (second from right).

CONFRONTATION SCENE: William Billions, 71, refused to leave his home despite eviction order yesterday and ordered everyone away from house with shotgun, Berrien sheriff's deputies said. Home is at right of store Billions also owned. Property has been purchased by state highway department and is in path of planned interchange from I-94 north of Stevensville at Red Arrow highway and Marquette Woods road. (Staff photos)

Defiant Homeowner, 71, Removed By Officers

By TOM SAWYER
Staff Writer
An elderly man, distraught over having to leave his home of more than 25 years near Stevensville, was taken from the home by a sheriff's S.W.A.T. team last night without injury to anyone.

Earlier in the day, William Billions, 71, had threatened other sheriff's officers with a shotgun and ordered away members of his own family, according to Berrien Sheriff Forrest (Nick) Jewell. Officers had gone to the home to serve a writ of restitution, a final eviction notice.

Billions' home and an adjoining family grocery store are to be torn down to expand the nearby I-94 interchange into a four-way cloverleaf at Red Arrow highway.

Last night, family members and his pastor talked Billions out of the house unharmed and onto the store parking lot. As they talked, officers of the S.W.A.T. squad unobtrusively encircled him and took him by the arms. The man was taken to the county jail, and Sheriff Jewell said authorization would be sought this morning for a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Jewell said he was glad the episode had been ended without injury. Presently only eastbound traffic may exit from the freeway there and traffic may only enter the westbound lanes.

The highway department said that an agent went to the Billions property on April 21 to take possession, but Billions asked for and received a 30-day on two separate occasions. Rev. Christos Moulas of the Greek Orthodox Church, Billions' pastor, said Billions had lived in the home for the past 25 years. He and his brother, Louis, operated the Lakeshore Food Market next door since 1962. Jewell said two loaded guns injury to the man or to any of his officers.

The sheriff said that about 10 a.m. yesterday Undersheriff Edward Sandera, Chief Deputy Donald Jewell and two other sheriff's officers had gone to the home at 4730 Red Arrow highway near the corner of Marquette Woods road to serve the writ. Jewell said at that time the officers were threatened with a shotgun.

Jewell said that it was decided to wait until darkness to attempt to remove Billions. "We didn't want the man hurt and we didn't want any officers hurt," Jewell said. He said that it was felt officers would have an advantage in the darkness. He said the county S.W.A.T. (Special Weapons And Tactics) team was called into action "because we wanted our most qualified people to handle this situation."

After the morning confrontation during which Billions refused to talk with police, his family or his priest, Jewell said he pulled all his officers from the area.

According to the state highway department and court records, the department negotiated the sale of Billions home and business, a small grocery store located adjacent to the house. The highway department said that in January Billions sold the house, store and 2.7 acres of an 11-acre parcel he owned for $85,000. Under an agreement, Billions was to have vacated the property by April 15, according to the highway department. The property is among several that the highway department has obtained to clear the way for construction of a complete interchange from extension.

At the end of the extension period, according to the highway department, members of Billions' family told the department that Billions claimed he would not move and that he had not been paid for the property and that he had no place to live. The highway department said that in January Billions purchased another home on Cleveland avenue. "After all humane efforts (were made) to get possession (of the property)," a department spokesman said, "eviction proceedings were begun through Berrien Fifth District court. According to court records, Billions did not contest or appeal decisions of the court were confiscated from the house after Billions was taken into custody, a shotgun and a handgun.

Jewell said that members of Billions' family were to remove personal possessions from the home this morning.

After Billions was in custody, Jewell said he was thankful that the incident was concluded without injuries. "There is no way we could have come out of this except in a bad light if (Billions) had been hurt or any of my officers injured."

URGES STRICT GUN LAWS

Priest Wants Pot Penalty Cut

By LARRY MACINTYRE
Staff Writer

A Catholic priest who has worked with the South Bend police department for the past three years yesterday recommended more stringent gun control measures and decriminalization of marijuana and cocaine as ways of reducing crime.

"I doubt very much if we can ever win the war on marijuana and cocaine," said Rev. John Cimino.

"Considering the time, effort and money it takes to fight non-addictive drugs, I just don't know if it's worth it," he said.

The laws against marijuana and cocaine just serve to perpetuate the flow of money to the criminal element that supplies the drugs, Cimino said.

Cimino was guest speaker at a noon meeting of the St. Joseph Lions Club.

Cimino is director of South Bend's Criminal Justice Planning Bureau. In that job, he applies for and administers federal grants to South Bend for police and fire programs, and he oversees local crime prevention programs.

He also teaches criminology at Indiana university and is writing a dissertation on police and religion for a doctoral degree in criminology at Notre Dame university.

He said high prices for marijuana and cocaine cause youths to commit crimes to get money to pay for the drugs.

Cimino's remarks were in response to a question from St. Joseph Police Chief William Mihalik who termed use of the drugs "a decay within our society."

Mihalik had asked Cimino if he thought it would be better to continue the fight against use of the drugs at any cost and hope for a long term gain rather than to surrender.

On gun control, Cimino said statistics show that guns kept in the home for protection are far more often used to harm the family either by accident or during family fights.

He said one reason criminals have so many guns is that they are stolen from homes where they were kept for protection and then sold cheaply on the streets.

Cimino prefaced his remarks by saying crime statistics are "about as accurate as a woman telling her age."

He then went on to say that in 1974, 72 per cent of all murders in the U.S. were committed by family members and friends. And of those murders, a firearm was used 68 per cent of the time, he said.

"That's why I'm in favor of very stringent gun control measures," he said.

Cimino's talk was titled, "Does the criminal justice system perpetuate crime?" He used a variety of arguments to answer the question "Yes."

The federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) has poured out some $17 billion in anti-crime funds since 1968, and it has caused the creation of a huge bureaucracy of middle managers eating up much of the money, Cimino said.

As an example, he said that in New Jersey, 68 per cent of LEAA funds went for administration and personnel and the remainder went in actual anti-crime programs.

He said he is one of the bureaucrats he was talking about, but South Bend's record is a little better than New Jersey's. South Bend gets about $100,000 a year in LEAA funds and only about $13,000 goes for his salary as administrator, he said.

Cimino said that in the same period that the LEAA has been handing out anti-crime money, crimes against persons have risen 47 per cent and crimes against property, 37 per cent.

"Crime has just flourished. That money (the $17 billion) has been fantastic fertilizer," he said.

Egypt's Press Freedom Used 'With Discretion'

By LISETTE BALOUNY
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Egyptian press is exercising new restraint under the watchful eye of the government after a period of publishing exposes and wide-ranging criticism.

"We have press freedom," insisted Moussa Sabry, editor in chief of the government-owned newspaper Al Akhbar. "The difference now is that we are using it with discretion."

However, another veteran journalist says the press is caught between two fires: "The government's hypersensitivity to criticism and the reader's disgust at our lack of guts for not reflecting his daily frustrations."

Until the turn of the year, expose-style stories, editorials and stinging cartoons assailed Egypt's supply shortages, housing inadequacy, embezzlement in state-owned firms, prostitution and crime.

Two days of rioting last January over price increases put a brake on a trend toward liberalization. President Anwar Sadat blamed the Communists for fomenting the riots but said the newspapers prepared the climate with undue criticism.

"We actually brought the president's anger upon us," Sabry said in an interview.

"There was indeed a time when we only wrote about bad things from the first to last page. We never gave the people hope for a better tomorrow."

"This put the reader in a mood of despair during the critical social, political and economic period we are in. It also spoiled our image abroad. Tourism decreased, and rightly so. Who wants to visit a country whose press says there are inadequate hotel facilities, traffic is bad and the filth is everywhere?"

New restraints imposed by the government include the "freezing" of some outspokenly critical newsmen whose articles no longer appear although they continue to draw their full salaries.

They now find themselves in similar company with Mohammed Hassanin Heikal, perhaps the best known Egyptian journalist abroad. Once a confidant of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser, he fell out with Sadat in 1974 and was fired as editor of the semi-official Al Ahram.

Heikal's articles appear in Kuwaiti newspapers and the Lebanese daily Al Anwar. Issues containing his columns are not allowed into Egypt, although a brief commentary Heikal wrote for Newsweek magazine recently was permitted.

A chorus of articles calling for Heikal's arrest appeared here for a couple of weeks last spring, and Sadat himself branded Heikal as a traitor.

But the president thus far has refused to clamp down further on Heikal because, sources said, Sadat does not want to turn the former editor into a martyr.

SPY SUSPECTS ARRESTED: FBI has arrested Carl John Heiser, left, Highlands Beach, Fla., and Carl L. Weischenberg, a West German, as suspects in plot to smuggle components of top secret U.S. cruise missile to Soviet agents in Cuba. Pair was arrested in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and charged with "acting as agents of East Germany and Soviet Union," a charge less severe than espionage. Weischenberg is awaiting trial in his own country on high treason charges. (AP Wirephotos)

Oldsters Will Get Break In Edison's Rate Plans

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Edison Co. wants to boost electric rates to bring in $122.3 million more annually, but says senior citizens would get a break on their bills under a new pricing system.

The giant utility this week asked the state Public Service Commission to approve rates that would add $2.48 a month to the bill of the average homeowner — who uses 500 kilowatt hours (kwh) of power. That homeowner now pays about $23 a month.

But it also asked that households headed by persons 65 or over be charged a special lower rate, which would be the first of its kind in the nation.

Under that plan, bills for senior citizens who use 500 kwh a month would increase by $1.46, or $1.22 less than the increase for younger customers. The bill of the average senior citizen, who uses 334 kwh of electricity per month, would increase $1.16 less other customers who use that amount of power.

The proposal "recognizes the unique problems faced by the elderly who, for the most part, are getting along on fixed and often relatively low incomes compared to their neighbors," said Edison chief executive William G. Meese.

Edison estimates that about 275,000 households would be eligible for the new senior citizens' rate, or nearly 20 per cent of the company's 1.5 million residential customers.

Edison's customers who are not senior citizens would pay slightly more to enable the discount for the elderly.

No PSC decision on boosting rates is likely for several months. Initially, the PSC will have to decide whether to give Edison the $88.9 million it says it needs immediately to tide it over until a final decision is made.

It normally takes the PSC nine months to a year to rule on an entire request.

Cement Kiln Being Eyed As PCB Waste Disposal

DETROIT (AP) — Environmentalists are studying the possibility of using a cement company's 2,300-degree furnace, one of a handful of its kind, to dispose of Michigan's PCB waste.

Under the proposal, the waste would be burned during the manufacture of cement in a kiln of the Peerless Cement Co. in southwest Detroit.

A new Michigan law provides that industries must burn combustible polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) wastes or safely store them until they can be burned.

John Hesse, chief of toxic materials control for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), said three such furnaces exist in the United States and one in Canada.

"We desperately need such a location," Hesse said. He said he learned of the PCB cement burning process during a visit to an Ontario cement plant. Peerless subsequently approached him with a proposal for a similar project in Michigan.

The Wayne County air pollution control division suggested that PCB liquid waste be injected directly into the kiln for the 10 seconds it would take to burn it.

the city's Delray section recalled they battled Peerless through the courts, finally settling a damage suit in 1973. The residents claimed fallout from the cement plant had ruined the paint on their homes, among other things.

They said that before they would consent to the PCB project at Peerless, they would need assurance from Peerless there would be no harmful fallout.

Berrien Marriage Licenses

The following marriage licenses have been issued by Berrien County Clerk Forrest H. Kesterke:

Henry Russell Friday, 36, and Alice Faye Maschke, 35, both of New Buffalo.

Donald King Hutchinson, 23, and Catherine Jeanette Van Loon, 20, both of Watervliet.

Douglas Alan DeRose, 23, Benton Harbor, and Geneva Elaine Shannon, 20, St. Joseph.

Richard Lawrence Nagy, 42, Niles, and Sandra Jane Hartigan, 43, Elkhardt.

Dale Fredrick Gadd, 48, Mishawaka, and Karen Diane Kelly, 21, Niles.

It said the heat will break the PCB down into carbon dioxide and water that will leave the kiln as a vapor. The chlorine in PCB would mix in with the cement, the agency said.

PCB has been widely used since the 1930's as a coolant, a hydraulic fluid and in ink, but most widely as an insulator in electrical equipment such as transformers.

The Great Lakes have been contaminated with PCB and Michigan and other states have banned the sale of some lake fish that contain a lot of PCB.

In addition, tests conducted on breast milk from Michigan mothers have shown a high quantity of PCB. Traces also have been found in food products such as eggs, milk and cheese.

Federal officials said Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) orders ban only manufacture and sale of PCB, not use of existing stocks. Consequently, the disposal problem will be around for years.

Biztax Hearings Called By House Taxation Panel

The House Taxation committee will conduct a series of public hearings the second week in August on the Single Business Tax and proposals to revise it, State Representative Harry Gast (R-St. Joseph) has announced.

Rep. Gast is a member of the House Taxation committee and will be present at the hearings. "The Single Business Tax has evoked much debate in our business community in the 18 months it has been in effect," Gast said. "It has been labeled as burdensome and unfair, and I don't think there is anyone unwilling to admit the tax has its flaws."

"The hearings will be restricted to an examination of specific proposals to revise the tax and evidence of the effects of the SBT. It is extremely important for anyone with strong views, specific proposals or evidence to testify at these hearings so that we can iron out the inequities in the law," Gast continued.

Gast said the committee would seek testimony from businesses on the following questions:

— What taxes did you previously pay?

— What was your last liability for each tax?

— What is your current unemployment compensation and workers' compensation liability?

— What is your current Single Business Tax liability?

— Are you eligible for any of the special provisions under the

POLICE ROUNDUP

Man Arrested
In Check Probe

St. Joseph police said a man was arrested at Peoples State bank Thursday after allegedly attempting to cash a forged check for $325.

Det. Lt. Tom Cooper and Det. Dennis Soucek reported the check was one of 28 reported stolen from Mary's Used Cars, 1358 Territorial road, Benton township, on July 18.

Four of the stolen checks had been forged and cashed for more than $1,500 before yesterday's arrest, according to Cooper and Soucek.

Arrested were Reche Davis, 27, of 1037 Union street, Benton Harbor, and Ruth Taylor, 19, of Grand Haven, police said.

Police said a check with the law enforcement information network revealed that Davis was also wanted on a Berrien county sheriff's department misdemeanor warrant charging him with writing a non-sufficient fund check under $50 and a Benton Harbor police felony warrant charging him with uttering and publishing a forged check.

Hughes reported he investigated an auto in Rocky Gap park at 12:30 a.m. after city police received a tip that two people who allegedly walked away from a drug rehabilitation center had taken a car. Hughes said the car had been borrowed.

Benton Harbor police Thursday arrested Louis C. Potts, 32, of 370 North Hull avenue, and turned him over to Lansing police, officers reported.

Police said Potts was apprehended on the 800 block of Union street at 4 p.m. after officers received a tip that a man in the area was wanted by Lansing authorities on a warrant charging him with alleged assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder.

—An AM-FM stereo radio-tape player from an auto owned by Helen Johnson, 209 Chestnut street, while the car was parked in a driveway at that address.

—A tape deck valued at $50 from the glove box of a car owned by R.C. Crafton, 946 McAllister avenue, Benton Harbor, while the auto was parked behind 128 Chestnut. Also damage of $50 to the glovebox of the car.

—A CB antenna from an auto owned by Willa Crase, whose address was not reported, while the car was parked at Red Arrow highway and North Euclid.

Benton Harbor police reported the following thefts:

—Cash totaling $48 from an unattended register at Talbot's, Drugs, 481 Pipestone avenue.

Potted plants were reported stolen from porches of two St. Joseph residences Thursday, city police said.

Larry Weichland, 2001 South State street, reported a six-foot rubber plant in a redwood planter was taken from the porch of his home, officers said.

Police also said Mark D. Schneese, 904 Harrison street, reported a large potted plant was stolen from the porch of his home. Schneese also reported Thursday a baseball glove valued at $70 was taken from his locked auto while the car was parked behind his residence the previous night, officers said.

Inmate Guilty
On Drug Count

An inmate at the Berrien county jail serving a one-year term for aggravated assault was convicted yesterday in Berrien Circuit court of possessing valium while in jail. Jurors in Judge Zue S. Burkholz' courtroom deliberated about two hours before returning the guilty verdict against James Henry Terry, 29, of Benton Harbor, to conclude a one-day trial. He remained jailed without bond to await a sentence of up to two years in prison. Terry was charged with possessing valium (a tranquilizer) May 18.

Terry was originally jailed for aggravated assault against his 8-year-old son. In October, he received another one-year jail term from District Judge John Hammond for aggravated assault against another prisoner. The second sentence did not begin until the first expired in May. Opposing counsel in the trial were Assistant Prosecutor Scott Beatty and St. Joseph Atty. Rick Miller.

Four Demand
Court Hearings

A man who allegedly ran out of a furniture store carrying a $100 vacuum cleaner was arraigned in Berrien Fifth District court yesterday on a charge of larceny in a building. Demanding a preliminary examination on the charge was Willie Johnson, 33, of 958 Broadway, Benton Harbor. He is accused of stealing the vacuum cleaner Wednesday from Lynch's Furniture Store, 448 Cass street, Benton Harbor. He was arrested by Benton Harbor police after a description was given by store employees.

In other arraignments, two Watervliet youths demanded preliminary examinations on charges of assault with intent to commit armed robbery. Demanding hearings were Daniel J. Komoll, 18, of 709 Richard street, and Thelma Lea Paulk, 17, of 401 Bluffview. Judge Hugh Black set bonds of $5,000 and the two were returned to jail.

Ezekiel Wadley, 24, of South Bend, fine and costs of $50 for possession of marijuana in South township May 24. Steve K. Dygert, 31, of Elkhart, Ind., $54 for fishing without a license on the south pier of the St. Joseph river in St. Joseph June 25.

Dennis A. Bernhardt, 18, of the Edgewood Court motel, Stevensville, $100 for attempted petty larceny — a pair of shoes from K-mart, Benton Harbor, on June 24. Kim Ronald Johnson, 20, of White Pigeon, $152 or 30 days for impaired driving in Oronoko township July 21.

Sister Lakes — Charlene Balus, P.O. Box 5.

Impaired driving (second offense): Doyle W. Rogers, 34, of Bus 3 Township road, Union Pier, $250 and 90 days probation; Ray Hampton, 49, of 426 Territorial road, Benton Harbor, $100.

Zeider, 22, of 712 North drive, New Buffalo, each $152 or 30 days.

Driving with a suspended license: Arnold Sendek, 25, of 2837 South Lake Shore drive, Shoreham, three days and $200. John D. Woodard, 23, of 2211 Township road, rural Benton Harbor, three days and $65. William H. Parker, 47, of Guntersville, Ala., and Little Adolphus Young, 27, of Decatur, Ill., each three days and $62 or 15 days.

can attest to the fact there is no specific return from his property taxes which are used to support public schools. Welfare benefits are not a right, especially when one has chosen not to work.

I believe that in the interests of preserving the spirit of collective bargaining, strikers should not be allowed to collect welfare benefits. To do otherwise only discriminates against the taxpayers in this State, and I do not believe that is fair.

IS BRIDGMAN TOO WEALTHY?

Editor,

To the people of Bridgman: Congratulations! Your policy has definitely worked on one family if your plan is to keep Wee Wee beach for local fishermen. Certainly I can see no other reason for such a high fee for such a primitive facility. I was charged five dollars per day to use your launch site to perch fish recently. Having paid the fee I imagine my surprise at finding the same four pieces of overcast strip I used only a few years ago for 50¢! In fact, I saw two persons stuck in the sand due to the narrow strips. They had backed off in their attempt to launch their lumps.

Both my wife and I were born and raised in the Benton Harbor-St. Joe area at a time when tourism was important as a source of income to the local people. Is it true as some of your local people told us that Bridgman has "too much money"? Is it really your intention to keep the beach for local people only? Since residents can buy a season sticker for $15.00 while a visitor must pay $5.00 per day it certainly looks that way.

Perhaps you would be interested to learn one can launch in Grand Traverse Bay for free on an equal or better facility. Swimming is also free. A very fine cement launch site is $1.50 if one has a larger boat than mine. But then the tourist dollar is still important to Benzie and Grand Traverse counties and the surrounding area. Yes, we'll stay home for fishing in the future and you will have your beach free of at least one family of tourists.

20TH CENTURY LIFE POSES PROBLEMS

Con-Ed Finds Itself On A Treadmill

By MARTIN MERZER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When the crowds gathered on Manhattan's Lower East Side in 1882 to see whether Thomas Edison's electric lights would work, few could have predicted that 95 years later the city would be crippled when the lights went out.

Shortly after Edison's successful experiment, the forerunner of the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York began service in lower Manhattan.

Soon, Con Ed was supplying electricity to all of New York City, except the small Rockaway peninsula in Queens, and most of Westchester County. Con Ed also supplies gas to parts of the city and Westchester; and steam, used for heating and cooling, in Manhattan.

But Con Ed finds itself on a treadmill. As the firm, by some measures the largest U.S. power company, solves one problem, the complications of 20th century life in a major American city present others.

While the company claims to have fewer power failures than most utilities, its outages are more dramatic than others.

Last week's failure, the second blackout to strike Con Ed in 12 years, came in the midst of an excruciating heat wave and only three days after Chairman Charles Luce said the utility was in excellent shape.

Through the 1960s, the firm had been accused of insensitivity to its customers, discriminatory hiring practices and inefficient management. After the 1965 blackout which dimmed the whole Northeast, Con Ed's reliability also came into question.

Luce, who took over in 1967, has worked for years to brighten Con Ed's tarnished reputation, but the personal and social disruptions caused by the latest blackout resurrected questions about Con Ed from analysts, state and federal officials and many New Yorkers.

Company officials blamed last week's outage on a series of lightning strikes on key transmission lines. An examination of the underlying causes, however, reveals many basic problems beset the company.

Con Ed's electric system is the largest in the United States in terms of revenue collected, $2.88 billion in 1976, and the amount of money invested in the company's facilities, $5.5 billion in plants alone.

But Con Ed's size alone — the utility has almost 3 million electricity customers — is part of its problem. Because of the congestion of the metropolitan area, 77,000 miles of the utility's 111,000 miles of cables are underground. That's 10 times more underground cables than the next utility has.

An underground cable costs about 10 times more to install and maintain than overhead lines. It is hard to work on, delaying recovery from a massive blackout — one reason why it took 25 hours to restore full service last week.

And the unique conditions in present-day New York contribute even more to Con Ed's problems.

Serving millions of commuters, Con Ed needs much more power during the 9 a.m.-5 p.m. business day than during other times. But because there isn't much big industry to use the same power during other hours — and one reason for that, ironically, is Con Ed's high rates — the generators used from 9 to 5 sit idle for the rest of the day.

To meet the city's air pollution standards, Con Ed in 1976 burned one of the most expensive fuels, low-sulfur oil, for 70 per cent of its generating power. The average for other utilities was 16 per cent.

Last year, Con Ed used nuclear power for 6 per cent of its electricity and natural gas for 1 per cent. The rest, 23 per cent, was purchased from other utilities.

Company officials say it often is cheaper to buy excess power from other utilities than for Con Ed to produce its own, and they are required by state law to seek such cheaper outside power.

But such dependence on outside power was a large contributing factor to last week's blackout. At that time, Con Ed was using overhead transmission lines to bring in one-third of its electricity from upstate New York and New England.

When those lines were damaged by lightning, Con Ed was unable to deal with the resulting power crunch.

Con Ed's annual taxes are more than three times the average paid by other utilities. Fuel and taxes account for 60 per cent of each electric bill, and those bills are getting higher and higher.

A large industrial firm using 450,000 kilowatt hours each month would pay 6.71 cents per kilowatt hour in New York City. In Chicago, the firm would pay 2.75 cents per kilowatt hour; in Miami, 2.92 cents per kilowatt hour.

A residential customer using 650 kilowatt hours would pay 8.63 cents per kilowatt hour in New York City, 4.29 cents per kilowatt hour in Chicago and 4.18 cents per kilowatt hour in Miami.

The situation does not tend to encourage large industrial plants in Con Ed's territory and is one of many reasons for the flight of big business from New York.

All of the firm's problems seemed to mesh in 1974 during a recession caused, in part, by soaring fuel prices. In April 1974, Con Ed stunned analysts by suspending its dividend to common stockholders, saying its fuel costs were increasing faster than could be recovered from customers and citing difficulties in collecting bills.

In addition, Con Ed's largest customer — New York City — was beginning to experience trouble paying its own bills.

The utility was saved from possible bankruptcy in 1974 when it persuaded the state to buy two power plants, then under construction, for $612 million. It also received $678 million in rate increases.

Management policies then were improved. In fact, an independent management audit ordered by state officials found little to criticize.

But all that was quickly forgotten when the latest blackout occurred; Con Ed's tarnished reputation was back.

Berrien General Proposes Elderly 'Day Care' Center

BERRIEN SPRINGS — A possible program to provide added services for the handicapped and elderly at Berrien General hospital has been outlined here by a hospital official.

Sandra Bruce, hospital administrator, said the program would be aimed at providing help for the handicapped to adapt to living on their own and give the elderly a day care-type center.

Speaking before the Berrien Springs Rotary club, Mrs. Bruce said the program for the elderly would be designed for those who can take care of themselves part of the time and do not need institutionalization.

Mrs. Bruce said the operation would be known as a living center.

Mrs. Bruce's comments on the plan were made to the Rotary club at its meeting Tuesday.

Mrs. Bruce termed the plan as an innovative concept and said it would help fill a gap in primary care for the handicapped and elderly.

Mrs. Bruce said that she would like to see federal funding made available for a pilot program involving the living center. She said, however, that while a proposal has been written for the care living center, it is still in the planning stages.

She also outlined for the Rotarians the roles of the American hospital saying that hospitals are now realizing they cannot continue to be "all things to all people." She said hospitals were now becoming more specialized. Berrien General is concentrating on primary care, she said, defining it as including emergency room and outpatient services as well as general medical and surgical services.

PANE-FUL PROBLEM: Security guard keeps his eyes peeled for cracked glass at Boston's 60-story John Hancock Tower. All 10,344 panes were replaced with stronger glass two years ago, but they still crack and fall out. Now guards will spot cracks by change in color, yell to clear the streets, then alert technicians to reverse the air-conditioning fans to create a slight sucking force that will make the faulty glass fall inward. Macomb County Teachers Halt On-Job Training ST. CLAIR SHORES, Mich. (AP) — Public school teachers in Macomb County have imposed a moratorium on training new teachers because they fear too many graduates are chasing too few jobs.

"In this county we are not going to admit any student teachers until we get a better handle in the teacher supply and demand situation," said Larry Morlock, a junior high science teacher here and a member of the board of directors of the Michigan Education Association.

The state association has called for a quota of just under 3,500 to be admitted to training statewide, and a number of districts have cut back the number they will accept. But only Macomb County is stopping entirely.

In 1975-76, said MEA president David McMahon, 10,000 new teachers were graduated and 8,000 had been laid off, making 18,000 teachers looking for an estimated 4,000 to 5,000 jobs.

"I think it is immoral to prepare teachers for positions that do not exist," he said.

There are fewer jobs because there are fewer students. The state Department of Education predicts 14,000 teaching positions will be eliminated by 1981.

The state has 30 institutions turning out graduates in teaching.

Educators in those institutions generally believe no organization should try to dictate the number of new job seekers.

Leland Dean, associate dean of the college of education at Michigan State University, said supply and demand should operate.

"Counselors make students aware of the job situation but they are still making the decision to enter education," he said.

Won't Fight Ouster

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. Atty. Philip Van Dam, fired two months ago by President Carter after he refused to resign, said Thursday he will not go to court to fight against being ousted.

Van Dam, a former aide to Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., has served as head of the U.S. attorney's office in Detroit since June 23, 1976. Although he was appointed for a four-year term, custom dictates that U.S. attorneys resign when the White House changes hands.

He was nominated for the job by President Ford on Griffin's recommendation.

In a statement telephoned to new outlets, Van Dam said, "Upon careful consideration, I have decided not to litigate the issue of my removal by President Carter from the position of U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan."

"The uncertainty that litigation would bring would not be in keeping with professionalism. I will do all I can to insure a smooth transfer of responsibilities to my successor upon his appointment and qualification."

Van Dam said he thought it would be at least mid-August before the Senate approved Troy attorney James Robinson, recommended by Sen. Donald R. Riegle Jr., D-Mich. He said he would serve until Robinson took over.
